FUTURE OF TEACHING DISCUSSED

Something to think about for OCE's teacher-trainees and those students who are "on the fence" as to what to prepare for in college.

As far back as 2 weeks ago the Educational Policies Commission of the National Education Association predicted an increase of 25 to 30 per cent in school enrollments during the next 10 years. It should be clear to anyone today that this will mean to the shortage of elementary teachers already in evidence.

Estimates made more than a year ago by the U. S. Bureau of the Census predicted that the birth rate would decline sharply after the 1946-47 peak. This has not been the case, however, as the first seven months of 1949 produced more babies than any corresponding period excepting 1947's record number.

It is to be wondered if in 1955 there will be six million more children in school than at present. Most of us are, in one degree or another, aware of the present problems of overcrowded classrooms and of poor or outdated equipment in the schools of today—but what will it be like in 1955?

The two primary deficiencies of our schools at present are, shortages of school buildings and teaching personnel. To help solve this the commission suggests a number of recommendations two of which should interest OCE students in particular. The first suggestion is that both standards and salaries for teachers should be increased during the next few years. These standards and salaries for elementary school teaching be as high as for secondary school training. The other recommendation advises that more able young people enter the field of teaching. Perhaps the teaching profession may soon find some high school seniors or someone already out of school who is undecided as to what he or she wants to do. Why not suggest the profession of teaching where it may not be so obvious?

Recently one of the larger Pacific coast colleges stated that one of the better opportunities for graduating college students was in the teaching profession—both in available jobs and in salaries. What makes it pretty obvious that the teaching profession is at last coming into its own or is at least on its way. It would seem that the present salaries are going to hold up for some time and possibly become better as the quality and training of teachers improves along with the increased need for more teachers.

WHY NOT PLAN TO SEE IT?

Everyone concerned with public education will want "The Fight for Better Schools," a new March of Time motion picture which has been released for general theatrical distribution throughout the United States. If this film is to be shown near your home during vacation, why not encourage your parents and friends to see it. It doesn't take long. The impression it leaves in a community may soon help you or some other teacher get the help you will need from the taxpayers.

Diana Porchard, a lucky girl, has received her engagement ring from her fiancé, Richard Hoover, who she hasn't been sung under the table because they hadn't had pie together. However, she can expect it very soon.

It was decided at the last house meeting to give gifts to some family or friends rather than exchange gifts as we have in the past. The Christmas dinner date was set for December 15 and the rule for common will be next Sunday evening.

By "Whittie" Baginton

The experiment by Coach Knox tried in the J.C. game last Friday night was a success as far as we're concerned. Basketball games in the past few years have been sometimes so close that nothing but a wild mate exists during the last few minutes of play. Mr. Knox's idea behind his "time limit" experiment is to have the teams play for 60 minutes instead of playing two 20-minute halves. Halftime would be called when one or the other of the teams scores 30 points. In the experiment game, the Oregon five went called at 38-34. However, that was because Coach Knox and Clark J.C. Mentor Sheets O'Connell had agreed not to play more than 46 minutes in the first half.

We see a lot of distinct advantages to the game as Mr. Knox wants it played. For instance, if OEC were to play "Pudnem Teeth" in a quarter, instead of having to foul around all night with the Portland five, the OEC could go out and score 30 points and the ball game would be over.

In a close game, another team has an advantage. It's just a question of which team will get 60 points first. It eliminates practically all defense, and in the next few years, it will only bring the team with the free-throw closer to 60 points. John Keil and Clark Brown are the officiators for the experiment game, both had a favorable time of the way the game progressed.

Speaking of the Clark game, the OEC five is coming around into a good ball club. Their half court was working well and block and credit, plus time was also working. All that shows is that the players are getting their timing down on offense and their defensive play is picking up. Passing was bit ragged at times and the shooting was off in the first half, but as the season progresses the teams should play a little steadier brand of ball, unless they have a bad night which might overtake any team occasionally.

Wolves Trim Clark In Clockless Game

OEC defeated Clark J.C. 61-42 in an experimental basketball game in the PE building Friday night. The time statistic was eliminated and the first team to score 60 points won. OEC led at halftime 24-23, because Coaches Bob Knox and Sheets O'Connell agreed to take half-time after 40 minutes of clasped time in the first half as the 20-point goal was not reached by that time.

The Wolves found their shooting ease in the second half and should have ended the game quicker. The score by a 20-10 margin. The game was much closer than the score indicates with the back slugging numerous times. The halftime score was 24-22 for Linfield. The score was tied for the last time at 34-34 with about two minutes left to play. Linfield took an early lead of four points until after some three minutes of play Smith dropped in a charge of two points for OEC. From that point on the game raced back and forth in a wild sea of sawing spas with players from both teams on the floor much of the time fighting for possession of the ball. OECs squad, although suffering from a height disadvantage, really put a fight and held their own on the backboards. Bruce Moore and Harrel Smith both turned in fine performances under the boards. The backboards while Rob Bushnell scored, aggressiveness and speed was outstanding.

M. Anderson of Linfield was high point man for the game with 16 points while Smith was high man for OEC with 14 points. Four men, two from each team, left the game via the free-throw rule.

The Linfield five made a fighting junior varsity 25-27 in the preliminary game. Line-up:

OEC (60) - (47) Linfield

Free-for-All Is Smoker Highlight

The Thursday night smoker-sponsored smoker has gone by the boards with a good time had by all and broken smokers, away from masses. All in all it was a good show with a capacity crowd attending. Everyone enjoyed the program.

The announcer, Marvin Turner, started things going by presenting the first two fighters, Jack Silvern and Max Batista, who were for three two-round matches. The fight went to Belfie. Next was a wrestling match between Lew Holt and Andy Sandberg, right-weighs-musclemen, a draw. Terio Kenlow and Don Batista mixed for the next three rounds with Belfie winning the decision. The comedy event came now and was the hit of the evening. In this event four fellows were kickfisted, wore one boxing glove each and with the other hand to "favor" their way around, tried to find an opponent at St. John Wade, Merle Darn, Dick Vanderven and Davie Drennan in the ring. This event, the round where the gloves were removed, the kickfists left on and the nuts wireless!

The fastest bout of the card was the Cecil Clay-Bud Michaels fight which was an all-around good fight.

Linfield Rallies To Dump Wolves

Tuesday night in one of the hard fought battles seen on the Mon-the bride floor in many a day the Linfield Wildcats put on a last ditch rally to come from behind and edge out as OEC Wolves by a score of 62-55. The game was much closer than the score indicates with the back slugging numerous times. The halftime score was 24-22 for Linfield. The score was tied for the last time at 34-34 with about two minutes left to play. Linfield took an early lead of four points until after some three minutes of play Smith dropped in a charge of two points for OEC. I'Mural Basketball Seas Close Games

In intramural basketball games played during last week, the Little East House and Varsity House quintets won their opening round conquests.

In winning both, L.E.H. and V.H.looked impressive with Little East House showing plenty of scoring punch. They'll be tough to beat in this season, unless some of the other teams come out of their scoring doldrums. Varsity House and the referees played a nip and tuck game all the way, neither team holding a distinct advantage at any point in the game.
