Evacuee Writes "Leave Zoot Suit, Long Haircut" Here

In a letter received by a member of the DISPATCH staff, Joni Shihoda, who left the Project for Chicago a couple of weeks ago, asserts that "The need is not creating a very good impression by not mixing in with the Caucasians."

Shihoda suggests some sort of a relocation educational program within the centers to properly prepare the evacuees for resettling in communities where the first impression is going to be a powerful factor in determining whether resettlers will be accepted or not.

"Also to tell the zoot suit boys what to wear, to make them leave their hair on the barber shop floor and come out wearing conventional things," he wrote. "And for God's sake, tell them to leave those strange looking clothes at home. Better yet leave the strange looking guys that inhabit such clothes within the center."

AH! IT HAS COME AT LAST..............

It didn't seem as if it would arrive this soon what with the snow, wind, etc. sweeping through the city during recent weeks. But it is reliable. It always comes about this time each year.

"No matter what happens -- wars, famines, floods, plagues--nothing can stop its coming."

For the Tuleans its arrival means uncomfortable days but what can they do for summer is here.
