Our Responsibility . . .

When the warning siren sounded this May in Monmouth few people paused long enough to even mentally ask themselves what it was all about. Others who were in the "know" ambled downtown to eat the free sandwiches and drink the free coffee provided for the occasion.

The "event" was May Operation Alert, 1958. It concerned civil defense which is part of the common defense of the U.S.A. and an inherent responsibility of government at all levels. This government includes you and I, both individually and collectively.

We at OCE must consider ourselves a "family" insofar as our mutual associations are concerned. If, and this is said with hope that it shall never be, our nation were subjected to atomic attack, friends and relatives would very probably be cut off from our immediate help. Civilian movement would of necessity be restricted.

Our future would largely depend upon our own advance planning and instantaneous cooperation with the local government.

The Federal Civil Defense Administrator has listed five simple steps necessary for survival. They are:

1. Learn local warning signals and what they mean.
2. Know your community plan for emergency action.
3. Provide protection from radioactive fallout.
4. Learn first aid and have emergency preparations.
5. Be ready to listen for survival instructions on the Conelrad

We quote from the words of an ancient prophet: "He that hath an ear, let him hear" . . . . .

Tax Deduction?

Early in June, the NEA Division of Legislation and Federal Relations began receiving reports from teachers indicating that they were running into trouble with Internal Revenue Agents in claiming deductions and refunds for previously paid taxes in accordance with TD 6291.

This provision states that educational expenditures are deductible if they are undertaken primarily for the purpose of: (1) maintaining or improving skills; or (2) required by the taxpayer's employer in order to retain a job.

However, it is clear from the nature of the complaints being received that IRS agents have been applying condition (2) only. An investigation is now under way to clarify this issue and it is hoped that the request of the National Educational Association for clarification and application of section (1) of TD 6291 will be acted on favorably.

This could affect you! ! ! !

Some 658 students were given an internal "once-over" during the unit's two-day visit.

OCE Summer Session Shows 16% Increase Over 1957 Totals

A break-down of final registration figures at the OCE summer session shows 503 undergraduates enrolled and 211 graduate students. The total—714—represents a 16% gain over the 1957 figure of 613, according to Registrar Jack D. Morton.

Of the 211 students in the division of graduate study, 196 are in elementary education and 15 are in secondary education.

A pair of two-week workshops began on Monday, July 7: Materials and Techniques in Art Education, and Science in the Elementary School. Another pair will begin July 21 — a repeat of the Art Education Workshop and a seminar on the Gifted Child. The final set will commence on August 4 and will consist of Methods and Materials in Social Science, and Preparation of Biological Materials.

Touring OCE Study Group Begins Seventh Trip to Europe

Editor's Note: The LAMRON is publishing this series of four reports on Mr. Charles J Noxon's Grand Tour of Europe so that OCE students at home may follow the summer tour group and share in their experiences. Many of the members are OCE grads. Today's article is written by two such grads, Mrs. Helen Mayfield of Salem and Miss Florence Kenzler of Springfield.

What is all this chatter and excitement at the Union Station in Portland on Friday afternoon of June 27? Porters are placing the large bags over here. Noxon is passing out little red identification ribbons for each piece of luggage and the cameras. Mrs. Vivian Hanson, of the Imperial Travel Bureau, is buzzing around here and there trying to answer a dozen questions at one time and passing out itineraries and other materials. Friends and relatives and the Journal photographer are clicking cameras. A few lucky tour members are receiving corsages or boxes of candy. Good-byes are said and at last we are boarding the S.P.&S. Vista-Dome train. The OCE grand tour to Europe is on its way!

Who is going? Sixteen lucky persons boarded the train under the capable and friendly leadership of Professor Charles Noxon of Oregon College of Education. Here is Maude Niver who teaches in Tillamook. She enjoyed the tour last year so much that she is going again this summer. Earle and Esther Albertson, teachers in the Halsey area, are a congenial couple with whom we soon became acquainted. Portland area residents included in the group are: Mrs. Ruth Bennett and her daughter Dorothy, a student at OSC; Betty Lou Berger, who works in an attorney's office; Sherri Jenkins, Willamette U. student; and Gertrude Thacker, teacher at Lake Grove school of the Lake Oswego system.

Other tour members are: Vernon Pomeroy who will enter Willamette U. this fall; Helen Mayfield, a teacher in the Eldriedge school north of Salem; Mary Gottchalk of Silverton, attending pre-med at U. of O. preparatory to nurses' training; and Julia Inglis, millinery instructor in the Salem Adult Ed. Center.

Four more come from the Eugene area. They are: Betty Jean Cornell, who teaches at Sweet Home; Joanne Kremers, teacher at River Road, Eugene; Marie Johnson, Triangle Lake school at Blachly; and Florence Kenzler, a Springfield teacher.

Our train skirted the north bank of the mighty Columbia amid scattered showers, passed several dams and scenic falls to Spokane, Washington. There we enjoyed an evening view of the Spokane falls located in the midst of the busy city. Here we transferred to the Milwaukee Railroad. Daybreak found us in Montana through which we traveled all day Saturday. By dusk we were just entering the Dakotas where we had a brief view of the badlands.

Sunday morning we awoke at Minneapolis for a one hour stop-over. Just before the train was ready to leave we found Marie missing. At the last minute she drove up in a taxi. She had been to church. We crossed the Mississippi several times and followed its course to LaCrosse, Wisconsin, where we crossed it for the last time. We continued eastward to Milwaukee and south to Chicago along Lake Michigan.

At Chicago we transferred from the Union depot to the LaSalle street station. It was here that the paging department called for "the man with the 17 large bags." (Mr. Noxon.) While waiting between trains we ate dinner in a restaurant where we could drink coffee without having to sway with the train.

A few of the swift-footed tour members dashed off to see Buckingham fountain and the Fountain of the Five Great Lakes before time for our New York Central train to leave for Windsor, Canada. During the night the immigration officer awakened the coach passengers at 3 a.m. so we could enjoy the experience of going through the tunnel under the Detroit river close to

Study Group Embarks

Lake Erie.

Monday morning found us nearing Toronto, Canada, on the Canadian Pacific Railway, onto which we had been switched during the night. We all passed customs satisfactorily. When we ate breakfast we had our first experience with foreign money exchange.

At Toronto we transferred to the Canadian National line for Montreal. As we traveled along through the lovely green countryside we had glimpses of Lake Ontario which later funneled out into the St. Lawrence river. Here and there we noticed evidences of the Glacial Age. Some of the remaining rocks and boulders are now used for fences and for foundations of buildings.

When we arrived in picturesque old Montreal we were greeted by six more tour members. Mrs. Anita Tinnerstet and her son Larry, from Pendleton, flew up from New York. Mrs. Beverly Brown, son Chelsea and daughter, Cheryl, all of Eugene, and Mrs. Brown's mother, Mrs. Ulah Winston of Winston, Oregon, had flown in from Oregon. While changing planes in Chicago they almost missed their plane and had to telephone to have it held until they could rush to the airport.

Through the splendid cooperation and good fellowship of all the tour members and the capable leadership and careful planning of Director Noxon, our tour is well under way with a promising beginning.

After a restful night at the Windsor hotel — where Queen Elizabeth stays when she is in Montreal — we are ready to board The Empress of England on July 1 for the long-anticipated trip across the Atlantic ocean! Europe, here we come!

Student Union Building Plans Taking Shape

Months of planning by members of the campus development committee, student council, the deans, and others, will sometime soon come to fruition as the new Student Union becomes a reality.

Dr. Arthur Glogau, dean of men and acting director of student affairs, indicates the $800,000 unit will serve a multitude of functions. Included and incorporated into the union commons will be the following:

1. Student book store.
2. Four bowling alleys.
3. Kitchen.
4. Student P.O. box area.
5. Recreation room adjacent to bowling alleys.
6. Men's and women's lounge.
7. Coffee shop (with booths and tables).
8. Four small banquet rooms.
9. Various ASOCE offices, i.e., student council room, Lamron and Grove offices, supply room.
10. Patio.
11. Large main lounge.
12. Administrative office.

The building will contain approximately 40,000 square feet of floor space and will have a dining area capable of accommodating some 600 students. This room will be slightly larger than the gym.

Tentative plans anticipate a possible initial ground breaking for the summer of 1959.

Speech Center Makes Handbook Available

Parents and teachers may obtain copies of "Let's Play Talk," a recently-published handbook of information and suggestions about speech development in children, according to an announcement by Dr. Robert L. Mulder, director of the Western Oregon Cooperative Speech and Hearing Center, and author of the booklet.

The handbook contains suggestions about encouraging normal speech development, tips on seeking professional help when genuine difficulties are met, and a list of suggested readings. A number of "games" that stimulate good speech development are described.

Individual copies are distributed without charge by the center
