Freshman Identification/Flowing Success

Freshman initiation opened Oregon College of Education, at which all freshmen were supposed to attend.

The apparel they wore for the first day was quite different, to say the least. The girls wore their hair up all day under their beanies, used no makeup, wore green sweaters or blouses, and bobby socks with heels. The fellows wore their beanies, lipstick and fingernail polish, and carried a stuffed toy.

On Thursday, October 6, the girls won-so make-up and their tapers legs rolled to the knee.

Friday, October 7, the fellows did the same as on Thursday. One of the girls was advertising Kangaroo Kourt.

Throughout initiation, if an upperclassman bothered "Hot Hook," the freshman gave out a guffaw.

Friday night Kangaroo Kourt was held in the gym. The judge was Hartigan Byars, sophomore class president. The jury consisted of Ron Martin, George Riddle, Susan Seavey, Jo Goodner, Russ Wells, Jo Janse, David Smith, Deanna Meade, Harold Hold- dorf, Denby Chamberlain, Steven Ingalls; Shirley Miller and Shirley Cottrell. The winners were Young were guards and props were handled by Jerry Ann Bai- ley and Beverly Blume.

The charges and penalties at Kangaroo Kourt were as fol- lows:

Charge: Not wearing beanies and to bed in the shower. Penalty: $10.00 and face down in floor with noses.

Charge: Being too friendly with upper-class women. Penalty: Do hall in seracs, lies and seminars.

Charge: Parking in front of a theater.

Theater Attendance Is Down, Closure Faced

The Ross theater of Monmouth is faced with the possibility of discontinuing movies unless more people patronize. A small town of this size needs some kind of entertainment and this may make the Ross theater a good theater.

The problem is that the ow- ners try to get the ones they think you, the students, may be interested in attended. So you must take into consideration that the size of the town is a handicap to the variation or newness of the show; where as in Portland or Salem the volume of business is the important factor; and determines what kind of movies they may have.

Of those few that do appear, the local theater, students will have to go to Salem or Dallas to find the movies, many of which those who don't have cars or are near- ly broke can't do. So, let's all patronize the Ross theater more often.

Library Receives Peace Book Gift Fund

A library has recently received a gift fund from Lucet- ta A. Ratcliff, former resident of Salem, now living in California. The fund was started in 1955 by an annual contribution by Mrs. Ratcliff.

The purpose of the collection of books is to contribute to the collection of Lucetta A. Ratcliff, former resident of Salem, now living in California. The fund was started in 1955 by an annual contribution by Mrs. Ratcliff.

Wolves Crumble
Portland 36-14

All doubt concerning Oregon College of Education's gridiron strength was quickly erased Saturday night. The rampaging Wolves, with power, speed and depth in every position, took advantage of several Viking mistakes that went on to tear Portland State in two.

State's unbalanced line, single wing offensive combination was completely stymied with the switching of starting right end, Doug Zitek, to the left flank as defense. Zitek, 180 pound sophomore, led his team in unassisted tackles with three and his speed and drive tore the Viking's interference in shreds. Wolves Score in First Period

State kicked off and being held for three downs, OCE kicked to the Viking 28. Left half Herb Winterholter, took the ball out of the hands of the visitors' first air try, but OCE's Don Lumgair intercepted and ran to the 50. The ball was downed there. Four plays later McManus, Capt. Paul Riley, Barry Adams and Arden Deterting in the backfield, left to right: Wyman Gernhart, Charles Harris, Don Lumgair, and Bill Brown at quarterback. With 8:00 gone in the first quarter OCE drove to the State 30. Garrison took a toss-out from Harp and sprinted into the end zone for a 28-yard tally. In the backfield: Don Lumgair-or Larry Buss and Wyman Gernhart and Charlie Harris quarterbacking.

John Chamberlain has been line coach at OCE for the past seven seasons. This year he moved up to head coach while Bill McArthur is on leave doing doctoral study at Oregon State College. Chamberlain graduated from Monmouth, to the tune of 36 yards and center for the eight yard Viking high school and carries on a suc- cessful insurance business.

In the backfield: Don Lumgair-or Larry Buss and Wyman Gernhart and Charlie Harris quarterbacking.

Chamberlain figures after be- ing on top in the conference for five years kicking. Chamberlain's figures after be- ing on top in the conference for five years kicking. In the backfield: Don Lumgair-or Larry Buss and Wyman Gernhart and Charlie Harris quarterbacking.

For more information on the Wolves, the visiting speedsters will be all for the visitors' first air try, but OCE's Don Lumgair intercepted and ran to the 50. The ball was downed there. Four plays later McManus, Capt. Paul Riley, Barry Adams and Arden Deterting in the backfield, left to right: Wyman Gernhart, Charles Harris, Don Lumgair, and Bill Brown at quarterback. In the backfield: Don Lumgair-or Larry Buss and Wyman Gernhart and Charlie Harris quarterbacking.

On accepting the post, La- Fountain, was anxious to get flag football intramural games sched- uled and started. The difficulty now lies' in getting enough teams organized for participation. So far only three teams have signed up to date. In the backfield: Don Lumgair-or Larry Buss and Wyman Gernhart and Charlie Harris quarterbacking.

Japanese Teacher at OCE; Here to Study American Way of Life

A Japanese teacher who survived the atomic bombing of Hiroshima, Mrs. Natsumi Tanahashi, has come to Oregon College of Education to study American ways of life, and to practice her teaching skills. Mrs. Tanahashi arrived in this country 19 years ago, and has spent much of her time in Japan teaching. She is 38 years old and has two sons of 10 and 13 years of age. However, she explained that her family was not at all separated during the war. Her husband has been sent to work on the roads where he was not engaged in fighting, and her two sons have been able to go to school. She explained that in order to get her two sons to school she has had to carry them share of responsibilities while her husband has worked to support the family. Mrs. Tanahashi has worked as a nurse, and then went to military school, and became an officer. She has spent much of her time in Japan teaching. She is now being sponsored by the ACE, which is an organization whose purpose is to work in the education and well being of children.

Where's The Fire?

We have been widely accused of being a nation in a hurry and to a great extent that is true. Unfortunately, as a rule the only thing our haste gets us is an age-old question, "Where's the Fire?"

There is a literal answer to that question—an answer which the media week by week Fire Prevention Week, is designed to provide. Where's the fire? In most cases it's where someone was in a hurry, taking chances and cutting corners, without time or interest for safety precautions.

The National Board of Fire Underwriters has estimated that man carelessness is largely responsible for 900,000 fires, and for most of our nation's 11,000 lives, and to a billion dollars in property damage and destruction.

The Fellow who doesn't take time for safety precautions may find it too late to catch, that the next fire is his house.

New Music Librarian

On campus we have a new music librarian, Muriel Pitts, who is also enrolled here to college. She is a member of the A. P. C. of the Little Portland Chamber Orchestra and a member of that group recently. Muriel plays the violin and also teaches violin in the local day nursery and elementary school, assisting Dr. Smith.

Class Eats Cheese

Janice Hage, freshman, recently treated everyone in the p.m. Orientation class to Tillemon cheese. The class is now looking forward to cheese from Hood River and onions from Gaston.
