No Pressure Here

Oregon College of Education is fortunate to be blessed with at least one professor-author who does not try to use his influence to create an artificial book market on the campus.

A rare bird indeed is the prof scholar who does not prey upon the student's pocketbook. Max Schuman lamented in his "Barefoot Boy with Cheek" that it was practically impossible to attend the University of Minnesota without selling the farm to buy yearly revisions of books written by the professors. Perhaps he exaggerated a little, but at the larger schools the required reading list usually includes a large percentage of books and other material authored by local heads of departments.

Here's to all authors who let the merits of the book decide the sales volume.

Keith Jensen hereby puts forth a plea to all new students for some fresh talent for this year's Homecoming Talent Show. Let's have some of that talented freshmen get in touch with Keith. By the way, this does not mean that this show is closed to you old "talented" timers.

The many committees continue to go through their paces. Myrna Little and Tom Turner so far compose a new dorm naming committee. Mary Wyman, Darlene Ware, and Don Helwig are now on the publicity committee. Guy Henn and Jack Williamson form the men's intramural committee. Sister Virginia has accepted her appointment to the student union committee. At the same time, Dr. B. and Lois Lidtke are now on the student welfare committee.

Sunday, October 30, is the date set for the big Kappa Pi art exhibit and tea in the art department and art gallery. The exhibit is composed of some of the favorite paintings being loaned to us by the Maryhill museum. The entire student body is invited. The time is from 2 to 5 p.m.

And, so much for another week in the basement office in Campbell hall.

THIS AND THAT

The latest practical jokes in the girls' dorms have kept them awake looking for things to do one another.

Since it is autumn and the leaves are falling, the girls in Arnolds Arms have taken to use. Several beds were lined with them Thursday night.

A girl in West House started to a new in the other. She discovered the sheets weren't there. After a hunt that lasted in the wee hours of the morning the sheets were finally located and the dorm settled back to normal.

"Never trust a roommate," is cry of a couple of girls in Todd Hall. When a girl gets over letters in one day she is eligible for a swim in the tub. Wednesday, two roommates, each arranged with friends for the night, for the girls, for the boy, for the party.

"They were more than mildly surprised when they were both discovered.

Those of you who eat breakfast at the Trails Cafe already know about the "music" that is coming. Part of the kitchen crew has been serenading the first students to come in the house. Favorite song last week was "Junior Birdmen."

It is rumored that there is a young man on campus who is being courted by one of his instructors taught him how and he's been practicing in Maple Hall.

An oriental group is a class of its own. Genevieve Minder treated the 9 o'clock freshman orient class with the October 18 with apples from Hood River.

Did you know that Mary Lou Hull and Bert Becker became engaged recently? They will be married during Christmas vacation.

Memorial Book Fund Receives Contribution

A substantial contribution to the Memorial Book Fund was received last week by the Oregon College of Education library from Roy A. Strandberg of Corvallis.

The money will be added to the Book Memorial started last August in memory of Strandberg's deceased wife, Lilian Dahl Strandberg, a 1942 graduate of OCE. Upon Mr. Strandberg's suggestion, part of the contribution will be used for books in the field of mineralogy, an area in which his wife developed a keen interest during her last years.

Mrs. Dessa Hofstetter, OCE librarian, stated that the idea of a Memorial Book Fund began in March when the W'yEast High School at Hood River advanced some money for a Memorial Book in honor of Dr. Robert J. Maaske, late president of the college. This type of fund is being used increasingly as a means of creating a lasting memorial.

Memorial Books have now been established in memory of three persons: Dr. Maaske, Mrs. Strandberg, and Charles Ratcliff, whose wife, Lucetta Ratcliff, of Ojai, California, has set up a "Orders of World Friendship" book collection at the college.

The college selects books which it feels represents the interests of the deceased person. A book plate, naming the person being honored and the donor, is placed on the inside cover of each book, and the literature sends a personal letter to the donor and the family of the deceased.

In the Gallery

In the art gallery there is to be an exhibit of oil paintings by R. H. Ives Gammell, Boston, Mass., which is on loan from the Maryhill Art Museum in Maryhill, Washington. The art department and Kaplan in the gallery.

Linfield Ground Attack Sharp

A determined band of Wildcats made the Linfield Homecoming a complete success on Saturday night when, with a devastating ground attack, they upset the touted Wolves of Oregon College, 13-12.

Led by play-making Ron Parrish and pile-driving left halfback, Bob Nelson, coach Paul Durham's grid machine completely dominated all play for Linfield's first conquest of the season.

There were three minutes to play before intermission when from the OCE 25-yard line Parrish sneaked over to the left of the 46-yard lines and points. Conversions didn't come easy for the Wolves and this time Cat tackle, Russ Kofford broke through to oust Don Lumborg's extra point kick.

Linfield's last and winning point came with 33 seconds of a decision. Starting from their own 18, the Wildcats covered 82 yards in 13 plays. Rick Sibley, first down. Nelson again starred in this TD push with 42 of those yards before Parrish sneaked over from the 2 and the hosts' last tally. Gleen missed the kick and the score read 7-0.

Linfield 13, OCE 0

FOOTBALL is at the halfway point for this season and one OCE like another successful year for OCE. What about next year's team? It is too early to find out when OCE's JV squad hosts the Linfield juniors this afternoon at 2:30 in Memorial Stadium.
