Dr. Eugene F. Dawson, national coordinator for the teacher education and religion project, will visit the campus Thursday, Nov. 3, on the OCE campus conference with members of the Oregon Association of Colleges for Teacher Education and Religion and Community.

Oregon College of Education is one of 13 schools chosen throughout the country to be a pilot center for the Teacher Education and Religion Project, which is supervised by the American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education and Religion in cooperation with the Danforth Foundation. The five-year program will begin its third year in February.

Purpose of the project, according to Dr. M. R. Thompson, chairman of the OCE committee, is to help public school teachers to become more 'professional' in the area of religion, and 'to develop means and methods to teach the religious content of the curriculum and other elements in our educational program.'

"The degree of interest and participation on the part of the teachers is at its highest peak now," Dr. Dawson stated. "It's slow but healthy degree of interest and participation." Dr. Dawson reported that several colleges are contributing to the project by writing essays on teaching about religion. A few of these essays have been included in a program and will be made available at a later date. Some are discussing the topic in periodic faculty meetings, some are making course analyses to see how curriculum modifications are necessary in order that teachers may become better informed about religion.

A two-week workshop on "Moral and Spiritual Values" was conducted by Dr. Dawson at OCE last summer.

World Traveler Will Lecture November 22

Joseph Ellis, world traveler, will address the Albion Chorus, in six cities and at two Assemblies program in Campbell hall auditorium on Oregon College of Education campus, 8 p.m. Thursday, November 22, at 9 a.m.

Joseph Ellis' program is both humorous and educational and is complete with native costumes, treasured weapons and a variety of exhibits.

Joseph Ellis was born in Bagdad, Oregon, a part of the last wave of people in a large wave of emigrants out of Russia. Ellis' parents moved to Vancouver by working in the kitchen on the Empress Hotel. Ellis met Mrs. Ellis in a new world, a new life, a dream come true, a bright day he will never forget.

To further his education, Ellis attended Dickinson junior college in Dickinson, North Dakota, and at the University of North Dakota while serving in the Army.

Ellis states the value of Music. He states, "Music is a place to relax. The boss is only human, not a robot. "

The Portland string trio will also be present during the program.

Social Adjustment is Article Topic

Mrs. Gertrude G. Patterson, supervising teacher at Oregon College of Education, has published an article, "Social Adjustment In Second Grade," in the 1955 Yearbook for the Association for Student Teaching.

In her article, Mrs. Patterson reports on a study on Friendship Formation and Learning Among Second Grade Children which was conducted at the Monmouth Elementary school on the OCE campus.

The study was designed to test the consequences of certain social practices at the second grade level and to serve as a training guide in group dynamics for student teachers. During a two-year period, individual's behavior and the guidance of group processes was dealt with among the boys and girls of two second-grade groups.

Some of the conclusions which seemed reasonable on the basis of the action study were that peer accepted children were seldom considered behavior problems by student teachers, the majority of peer accepted children had high status in the class, and the status of the upper social class generally ranked high with the age-mates while children of the lowest social class generally ranked low with age-mates.

"It's Only Ed's Sister With His Laundry." No pets are allowed in Todd Hall, but so far, the kitties and puppies that flock to the open doors haven't been convinced.

Display School Work

Second graders at the Monmouth elementary school, commemorated American Education Week by arranging a display of school work in the windows of Powell's Insurance office, Monmouth.

Dr. Childs plans to show how all social and scientific movements are bound up together in producing social movements in the culture of the country as expressed in the arts. He will look into the future to indicate where present-day philosophy is leading the nation.

Robert R. Reichart of the school of education and Charles C. Friday, economics professor, will give the second and third lectures in the series. Dr. Reichart will speak Feb. 28, and Dr. Friday on May 13.

FRESHMEN WIN HOMECOMING TUG-OF-WAR CONTEST

About the easiest way to get in touch with the person who has been appointed chairman for the event. Also you may leave your name with one of the deans but this is usually a much slower and less sure method.

Fine Concerts Dated

The social calendar states that there are two tremendous concerts on the way for our enjoyment. Both are to be in the auditorium in Campbell hall. On November 14, Theodore Ulman, pianist, will be presented and on November 17 the Albany Chorus will sing. Both are scheduled to start at 8 p.m.

Investigation Adoption

One of the committees now underway through student council appointment is investigating the possibility of adopting a war orphan. In 1949 a similar orphan was adopted with great success. This child is adopted by the students for a period of one year at a cost of $15 a month for that period of time. A final report is to be presented later. The main problem at present seems to be how to raise the aforementioned amount for support.

OCE's football campaign came to a close for another year after a good start but not such a sensational finish. Now comes the current basketball season and with the below-freezing temperatures, it should be pleasing to the sporting fans to witness this phase of athletics in a cozy gymnasium.

Ralph Gale, Lamron Sports Editor

OCE Happy With Hemp Squad

The OCE mentor, "Everyone has had a high school sensation in Akin's team, playing in sub-below-freezing weather before a homecoming crowd, approximately 500 spectators, used virtually every foxy maneuver in football. The Raiders sprang the on-side kick three times and used a variation of the old "buffalo spread" to keep the Wolves off balance through much of the contest."

The SOCE victory, the firing-up Raiders, the losing OCE Wolves, and Eastern Oregon College league possession of the league crown. Each finished the league season with a 3-1 record.

From here on out it's going to be tough. Saturday, there will be try at the 'Cats and took a good man down a bit from a first-half enthusiasm. Wyman Gernhart crashed over left guard for the score.

Southern Oregon's b r i l l i a n t showing failed OCE's hopes for a sixth undisputed title. The Wolves won five straight prior to 1954. Last year they shared the title with Oregon Tech. It was a sweet victory indeed for the Red Raiders. This marks the first time they have obtained even one piece of the crown. The same holds true for a surprised Eastern Oregon College eleven.

Marion Speech Centers

A series of in-service programs concerning the prevention of speech disorders have been started at three centers in the county under the direction of Dr. Robert L. Mulder, director of the Western Oregon Cooperative Speech and Hearing Center at Oregon College of Education.

The in-service programs are sponsored by Agnes Booth, Betty J. Parrett and Glen Robertson of the Marion county school superintendent's office and aided by Mr. Bill Wensley of the State Department of Education.

Fifty teachers attended the first in-service program held in Silverton November 2, 3 and 7. Other programs are planned for Woodburn on November 9, 10 and 14; and Stayton on November 16 and 21.

Topics covered at the meetings include the detection of speech problems, language learning and remedial and preventative techniques.

Enameling Article By Heath Published

An article on enameling by Mrs. Pearl B. Heath, associate professor of art at Oregon College of Education, has appeared in the latest issue of the national art magazine, "Design." Mrs. Heath originally had her article, "Enameling Is Fun," published in the spring issue of the "Sketch Book."

Attends I-R Supervisor Meeting in Portland

Charles Nobsen, assistant professor of social science at OCE and advisor of the college's International Relations club, attended a recent meeting in Portland of faculty supervisors for I-R clubs. Representatives from colleges and universities in Oregon and southern Washington attended the meeting.

Alexander W. Alport, vice-president of the Foreign Policies Association, met with the group. This is the first time a national officer of this association has been in the northwest for this purpose. Mr. Alport is conducting a series of sub-regional sessions throughout the United States in order that advisers of I-R clubs can discuss problems and exchange ideas.

Warren Rovetch, regional director of the I-R branch office in Portland, was also at the meeting to offer the services of this association to International Relations clubs in this area. The Association of I-R clubs is now affiliated with the Foreign Policies Association.
