SENIORS TAKE OVER

Most Typical Students To Be Revealed at Dance

Two of this group will be presented as the “most typical” OCE students, Betty Coed and Joe College, at the senior preview dance Saturday night during intermission. The choice was made by a student body vote in the recent spring election. Back row (l. to r.) — Ted Forbes, Joe Roberts, Darrell Lunds, Bill Dayton, Jeannette Spinnny, Pat Holman; second row — Audrey Nicholoff, Phyllis Seid, Barbara Makinsader; inset — Dee Anne Larmer, Harry Pease, Eimer Sommerfield, Dale Harper and Darlene Finney.

Prom Princess Choices Revealed

Edie Nielson, senior; Ma Nagoshi, junior; June King, sophomore; and Sandy Owen, freshman, are the princesses from which will be chosen the queen who will reign over the senior-junior prom, May 14. Julius Mee’s band will play for the dance to be held in the gym, according to Don McCracken, chairman. The queen will be chosen by a student body vote.

To Edit Grades

Opal Braudwas was appointed 1955-56 editor of the OCE annual, the Grove, by student council Monday night. Recommended by this year's editors, Opal has had two years experience on the Grove staff. She is a sophomore from West Linn.

In the commissioner race for nine positions on the ASOCE student council are candidates nominated at the last student council meeting. Nomination petitions could be turned in up to Friday at 4 p.m. Late ballots may give candidates up to 9 a.m. Friday.

Dee Ann Larimer is the sole nominee for social commissioner, which was selected by the faculty advisory committee. She will be elected by the student body.

Elections Will Start Wednesday

To Be Measured

Measurement for caps and gowns for graduating students will continue daily, Monday through Friday, April 29, between 4 and 5 p.m. in Ad. 117. Students who cannot be measured at this time must make a special appointment with Miss Hill in the president's office.

A petition to endorse Dr. Roy Lieuallen, for the presidency of OCE has been initiated by students with the sponsorship of the ASOCE student council. Originated by Eimer Sommerfield, Dale Harper, and written by Harry E. Pease, all ASOCE officers, the petition received the unanimous approval of the council Monday night.

Spooks, Lovers and Crook

This davenport scene depicts Darlene Trineer, Pat Sax, Keith Jensen, Elvera Kurtz, and John Carpenter, (l. to r.), with Edie Nielson and Harold Stephens seated together. The comedy, "Lo and Behold," will be in its second performance tonight at 8:15 in the OCE auditorium.
Prexy Extends Welcome

Always it is a pleasure to welcome the seniors to our campus. We recognize the fact that a great share of you will be members of our next year's freshman class. As a result, this is our introduction to you as well as your introduction to this campus.

Join in on the friendliness and the activities and feel a part of our campus - we wish to make this your week-end and hope that it meets your desires.

Once again, welcome to Oregon College, and

DALE, HARP, ASONE President

To The High School Seniors

You're here, so what! So, we're glad to have you here and hope your stay is a pleasant one.

You are here to see our campus and learn a bit about college life and we are ready and waiting to do a sales job. As you go through the week-end, you will have ample opportunity to hear propaganda from all sides. Well, here it comes from a fellow who is about to graduate in June after four years at Oregon College of Education.

Things have changed quite a bit since we (Class of 1955) arrived here in 1951, but the standards of sincere friendliness and warm faculty-student association have been maintained. It's a pleasure to be breathing in the freeway "HI" to everyone and an occasional chat or cup of coffee with a prof is all in a week's activities.

There then are studies. They haven't changed much in procedure, but what a change in nature and content. Pre-professional, general studies, and secondary ed. all added to elementary ed. Friendly students, competent and helpful pros, and high school background enables one to handle those with work. A spacious library helps in the studies, too.

Living quarters are good and getting better all the time, especially for the boys. The new men's dorm is going to be completed by September and will place 100 male OCE students in one of the most practical and complete dorms in the area.

A brand sopping new swimming pool is the latest addition to an ever expanding physical program. Few other small colleges in the Northwest can make that statement. If we haven't got it, by and by we'll get it—maybe.

True, so we're small, but efficiently so. True we're friendly and pleasingly so. True we're growing and just about so. So There!

Combined Programs Set for Graduation

A combined baccalaureate and community college program is scheduled for 2 p.m., Friday, June 3. An estimate reached by Chuck Kreuner, senior class president, sets the figure near 500 for those graduating and receiving degrees that day. The services are combined into one program for the first time in recent years as a result of a request by the prospective graduates.

Baccalaureate is usually held Memorial Sunday.

Pair Take Over Jobs As Lamron Photogs.

In charge of all Lamron photography for the remainder of the year is Bud Somers, fresh from Myrtle Creek, and Glenna McKinney, sophomore from Silverton. They are replacing Dick Harry who has handled all the work previously. Both Glenna and Bud have done all the photography for the Grove, OCE annual, this year.

Student Welfare Group Makes Suggestions

The student welfare committee met with six members present and seven absent, April 12 in Ad. 107.

Matters taken up included recommending speed limit signs near the Village, spring registration, and a possible meeting to discuss problems of the Village next fall.

The committee is made up of representative students and faculty selected by student council and the college president, respectively.

Red Raiders Tip OC Netsters 5-2
Aki Mitiomi and Larry Hearning capped single wins and that was all Coach Stan Ruckman’s tennis lads could garner in their season’s opener with Southern Oregon. The count was 5-2 in a match played in Ashland.

Cold weather brought back a leg cramp to Aki in the third split of the first doubles match and the Oregon College crew relinquished it by default. The count stood 2-2 in the final set at the time.

Mitiomi, captain of the team and playing number one man, came from one set down to grab his singles win, 6-4, 6-4. Hearning, number four man, likewise zoomed from behind to win 64, 64.

Singles:
Aki Mitiomi (O) defeated John Stucky (S) 3-6, 6-4, 6-4.
Bud Purdin (S) defeated Glean- son Eakin (O) 6-3, 6-4, 6-3.
Noel Deets (S) defeated Jim Dawson (O) 6-3, 7-5.
Larry Buss (S) defeated Chuck Plummer (S) 6-4, 6-4.
Bud Carstens (S) defeated Murvel Stone (O) 7-5, 6-2.

Doubles:
Purdin-Stucky (S) defeated Hearing-Mitiomi (S) 6-4, 6-4, 6-4.
Bud Carstens (S) defeated Murvel Stone (O) 7-5, 6-2.

Preview Stars

Darlene Knab, student chair- man, will direct campus tours at the end of the assembly. Following the tours, a picnic luncheon, under the chairmanship of Kathy Seiffert, will be held in the grove at 12:30. In case of rain the lunch will be in the gym.

A talent show in CH auditorium, under direction of Keith Wessler, Presbyterian minister and faculty member as speaker. The show will further portray the talents of these campus, under direction of Keith Wessler, Presbyterian minister and faculty member as speaker.
The second performance of "Lo and Behold," OCE's all-school play, will be held in CH auditorium at 8 p.m. tonight as part of Senior Campus Preview. The performance will be free of charge to visiting high school seniors but admission is $1.50 to students.

Last night's performance was well received by a good sized audience and tonight of performance promises to be even better. "Lo and Behold" by John Patrick and directed by George Harding, is a modern ghost story without the fear element, with an appealing love story of two "earthlings" interwoven in the plot.

Keith Jensen plays the lead, Milo Alcott, a Nobel prize winner with an ailing heart. A new maid, Daisy Durdle, played by Ede Nelson, is hired and when Milo eats a good meal, cooked by Daisy, he dies.

The series of the spirits of an Indian maiden, Pat Sax; a composer, Darlene Trineer; and a Southern belle, Clara Kunit, and their interference into the love affair of Daisy and Robert Dorsey, Milo's physician, played by Harold Stephens, supply much of the humor of the play.

The scene where Daisy and Robert talk through "milo" when he is a ghost, is one of the very amusing parts. John Carpenter plays Jack McDougal, a "friend" of Daisys and Milo's lawyer, Miss Wingate, is played by Dor-othy O'Connell.

Assistant to the director are Mariel Horning and Dauphine Hardie. Other back stage jobs are house and advertising man-ager, Geige Bauschke; costumes, Wilma Philips and Pat Driscoll; make-up, Jewel Kirk; properties, Shirley Phillips; staging and light- ing by members of the play produc-tion class.

IRC To Meet Tonight

International Relations Club will meet Monday, April 25, to discuss the Bandeling Confer-ence this summer. Viewing the objects are Dr. Robert Livingston, Mrs. Lois Vanderpool, and Mrs. Ruth Johnson, with Dr. Art Giqoay, standing.

Shawing souvenirs from South America is Mr. Charles Nason, OCE study tour director of the trip to be made to Latin America this spring. The tour will be held April 24, 25, 29 and 30.

"Finest Small College Pool" To Be Dedicated at Ceremonies on Sunday

by Jay Davis

Touted as the "finest small college pool in the Northwest," the Wolverton Memorial Pool will be dedicated at ceremonies here Sunday, April 24, at 3 p.m.

Construction of the $120,000 pool was begun last summer with a gift of $80,000 from the estate of Grant S. Wolverton, which was supplemented by funds allo-cated by the state board of higher education.

The pool will be dedicated to the memory of Mr. Wolverton's parents, early Monmouth pioneers, as a lasting gift to OCE and the young people of Monmouth.

Dr. Roy E. Lienau, adminis-trator in charge, will preside at the ceremonies which include on-sight speeches by Mr. Wolverton, Dr. Robert Livingston, and Chancellor Charles D. Byrne.

Exhibits swimming will fol-low at 25 minute intervals thru-out the afternoon. The "Aqua-maids," sponsored by the Lake Oswego country club will repeat their performance because of seating facilities limited to about 75 people at one time.

Refreshments will be served by the OCE faculty club in the faculty lounge and the art gal- lery and library will be open for inspection between 3:30 and 5:30 p.m.

Over 700 Educators To Hold Session This Week-End, OC Students Welcome

Students are welcome to attend sessions at the 50th Oregon educational conference set for next Saturday, April 30, when 700 to 1000 Oregon educators are expected to be here.

The conference will open with a general assembly in CH at 9:45 a.m. followed by an address by Dr. Francis E. Lord, coordinator of special education at Los An-geles State college. His subject is "Approaches to Special Educa-tion."

"How Well Are We Teaching the Basic Skills?" is the second address at 11:15 a.m. by Dr. Ear-nest Horn, professor emeritus of Idaho State University.

Sectional meetings are slated for Saturday afternoon. Primary teachers may hear Dr. Lord talk again about special education in two in CH auditorium. The same address will be given for the in-termediate and upper division at three in MDS auditorium.

Dr. Horn will address the intermediate and upper group at two on "Integration of Social Studies" and will speak to the primary group at three.

Administrators will hear Mr. Henry Tye, superintendent of Monmouth-Independence schools, speak on the topic, "Human Use of Human Beings" in two at 12:00.

Other activities scheduled are banquets Friday and Saturday evenings with Dr. Lord and Dr. Horn, respectively, as the guest speakers, and a no-host lunch-one, Saturday noon in the gym.

1955-56 Officers and Yell Queen
