Bunny Sweetheart;

Another Sunday has rolled around. I am always much more aware of the distance separating us on Sunday than on other days because this used to be our day. It was the one day of the week I could be with you when I was at Camp Grant. When I return, and after I go back to school, it will still be our day. The day of the week when we shall be together all day. You may rest assured that there shall be no rising until time for a breakfast – lunch combination, unless we intend to do some early picnicking. We shall just lie there all morning making love and reading the Sunday papers. Does that sound as if it were enough to keep us busy for a while Honey?

It was very nice of Mother and Pop to give you $40 for your graduation present. That came in handy on your trip to Lynn didn’t it? I’m sorry that I didn’t think about it till you mentioned it to me Darling. Am I forgiven. You can buy yourself whatever you need with part of that money I sent you and that will be my present to you, all right?

Have you had any more luck getting cigarettes. [sic] If things get much worse the only solution to your problem [scratched out word] will be the complete breakaway from smoking. I imagine your mother is still trying to convince you that you should give up smoking isn’t she?

I’ll be very much interested in this paper Mac is sending to all former ASTs. It should be interesting. I imagine Ian Reid and Tomkelson are helping him work on it. It will enable me to find out just where all the boys are.

I just ran across a picture of the p.j.s I told you I saw in an issue of Life and was very intrigued by. I’ll put it in here to see how you like it. They would be for you, not for me since they are not a man’s p.j. I just thought they were tricky [scratched out word] and could easily be made.

It has been raining part of every day now. Kowalchuk tells me that it is only the beginning and that last July when he was here it rained solid for 30 days. The only relief they got was when, for a [scratched out word] half hour at a time, it would slow down to a drizzle. That doesn’t sound very encouraging. Prelles left his shoes out during the rain storm and when he remembered them they were filled with at least an inch of water. They’ll really be a mess when they dry out, if they dry out.

We played a little rummy today and I ended up $1.25 ahead. I lost to Duffy and then took Kowalchuk to the cleaners in a short two handed game. I am still about $5.00 ahead for the month. All my gambling is on a small scale in friendly games here in the tent, so don’t be alarmed Honey.

Preller is having me do a dozen illustrated envelopes for him for a pound. I am going to make master drawings and [scratched out word] from these I shall make carbon copies for any fellows who want to buy envelopes. I’ll have a selection of about a dozen different sketches. He also got a fellow who wants his portrait done, which will mean another pound. I’ll be making money yet. If I can pick up about $50 a month this way I’ll be doing all right. I’ll send all the money I earn this way to you to buy stuff for the house or to put away for the house. The rest of the money I am sending home will be for our vacation and for the start of our bank account, as well as for clothing me.

I’m very surprised to hear you admit that you can’t write on a train. Just when I thought that you could do absolutely anything you went and disappointed me. You have taken the blindfold off my eyes and revealed to me the kind of flaw though which enhances the perfection by pointing it up so don’t shed a tear Honey. I still love you more than ever before.

You sound very much relieved to have finished all your studies and to be through with the academic life. You really won’t be getting away from the school atmosphere tho [sic] if you work for some of the profs. Then when I return you will again be saturated with the college influence when I go to school. I imagine it is a relief to be able to go ahead reading the things you want to, when you want to read them and not having to [scratched out word] worry about exams any more. Did you have any luck getting a place on the train at Jackson? I hope you were able to get accommodations. I suppose you travelled Pullman like a blue-nose aristocrat didn’t you? No roughing it as we did when we went home together. My other packages haven’t come in yet. I hope they do soon. I have quite a few on the way now.

Honey, I guess I had better just give up and go to bed. My paragraphs are all running together. Good night Darling. I love you -------Freddie
