OREGON NORMAL SCHOOL, MONMOUTH OREGON, WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 9, 1935

NUMBER 1

Pavilion Ready By December

Building To Have Hand- Ball Courts; Seats Will Hold 1,000

Oregon Normal school's new gymnasium now under construction south of the present buildings, is expected to be finished and ready for occupancy by December 1, according to President J. A. Churchill.

The new brick structure is being constructed at a cost of $67,000 and embodies facilities not previously included in the school's gymnasium. Chief among these is the addition of two handball courts on the northwest corner of the building with a corresponding spot being reserved on the southwest corner for a swimming pool, to be constructed in the future.

The new playing floor itself, embodying the basketball pavilion, will measure 96 feet, four inches by 87 feet. Both permanent and portable bleachers will be installed to accommodate about 1000 spectators.

Men's wrestling and fencing rooms and women's dancing and clogging room are included on the main floor of the new gymnasium in addition to offices for the directors of physical education.

The basement of the building is arranged for men's and women's dressing rooms, showers, and trainers' rooms.

Then Miss Mitchell led in assembly singing for the remainder of the period, assisted by Mrs. Hutchinson at the piano.

More assembly singing was enjoyed September 30, when several of the school songs were learned.

New Administration Hall To Be Ready in September

Funds totaling $100,000 for the construction of a new administration building on the campus of the Oregon Normal school were recently granted, according to a report from C. C. Hockley, of the Public Works administration. A telegram from the Washington, D.C. office of Senator Frederick Steiwer later confirmed the report.

Staff And Key Holds Meeting

Future senior girl members were considered at the first meeting of Staff and Key in the Administration building, Friday, September 28.

The Staff and Key is the only girls' organization of its kind on the campus. Its purpose is to uphold the standards of the school which are scholarship, loyalty, cooperation, leadership and friendship, and to promote a better feeling among the students by striving to live those standards in every day life. It is a club for both the junior and senior girls.

Combining their business and social meeting, the girls discussed plans for the ensuing year.

This year's officers are: Margaret Turnbull, president; Ruth McCullough, vice-president; Helen Hall, secretary; and Francis Grunley, treasurer.

Miss Barbara Nelson is the honorary member and adviser of Staff and Key.

ONS Capella Choir To Give Vesper Service

Tryouts are being held this week for membership in the O.N.S. a capella choir. Mrs. Hutchinson, director of the choir, is planning to begin work next week on sacred and secular music in order that a Sunday vesper service may soon be presented.

The highlight of the term is the annual Christmas vespers given in conjunction with the school orchestra. Invitations are issued to old members to rejoin.

The choir is limited to 36 members.

33 In ONS Orchestra To Present Concerts

The ONS orchestra was organized for the year last Monday evening by Miss Mitchell, director. Several interesting concerts should be presented this year by the 33 promising musicians who turned out for the first practice.

The instruments represented included: Violins, viola, cello, bass viol, flutes, clarinets, trumpets, horns, baritone, tuba, bells, drums and piano.

The pianist will be chosen next Monday evening. The orchestra is not limited in membership, and all who play an instrument are urged to join.

SQUAD TO PLAY IN PORTLAND

This Saturday night ONS meets the Portland branch of Albany college in Portland under the Vaughn street lights.

Ground will be broken for the new building within 60 days and the building ready for occupancy by next September. It will be a three-story brick structure, embodying all the offices of the school's administration, some faculty offices, and several laboratories and class rooms.

West House, present location of faculty offices, will be cleared and remodeled for use as the school's infirmary. All faculty offices not moved to the new administration building will be moved to the present administration offices, also to be remodeled.

Included in the scheme of the new building are laboratories for physics, biology, chemistry, psychology and a few class rooms. It will be financed by a $45,000 grant and $55,000 loan by the Public Works administration.

The state board of higher education meets October 25, and it is expected that the board will call for bids for the construction of the new building at that time.

Future Assemblies Will Prove Entertaining

Several interesting assemblies for the near future have been arranged by the faculty committee on entertainment.

The first feature of interest will be given on October 7 when Miss Jane Dudley of Madison, Wisconsin, will present a group of violin numbers. Miss Dudley has played at previous assemblies. On October 9 Quincy Scott, cartoonist on the staff of the Portland Oregonian, will speak.

Another violin recital is scheduled for October 14, to be given by Charles Smith of Portland.

Mr. Stebbins is arranging for educational films to show with the school's new film projector every other Monday beginning October 21.

Creative Dancing Group Welcomes New Women

If you're tall, if you're short, if you're lean, if you're fat, you will be welcomed by the old LaDanza members in the gymnasium Tuesday night at 7:00 o'clock.

The officers elected for the coming year are: Isabel Hannon, president; Anne Louise Larson, secretary-treasurer.

Creative work will be under the direction of Lavon Sayers and Barbara Nelson; calisthenics, Claudia Alexander; and fundamentals, Ruth Beasley and Margaret Turnbull.

Mrs. Grant (Topsy) and Mrs. Blackerby (Kirk) will take the place of Miss Parker, who formerly led the group.

It is the usual custom of La Danza to give a recital during the year.

"No Path Too Steep, Nor Road Too Rough," That Is The Key To Progress

BY MARY JANE COCHRAN

Up to now we may have done little or we may have done much that is worth while. Well, so be it. From now on is ours to do with as we choose. Except in so far as the present and the future have their roots in the past, we have an entirely new beginning. Each day, as a matter of fact, gives an opportunity for an entirely new start for each of us. In the past the page of the day so clear and free of blots as its beginning has all too frequently at its close been spotted with wasted hours, careless thinking, and commonplace living. But the past is gone. Let it bury itself. We can turn our eyes to the future and look not backward.

It is true that we are what we are today because of all of our yesterdays, yet many a man of resolute courage has turned his back on all of his past except those things in it which should advance his ambition. This means that we must accurately appraise ourselves and our abilities. We must accept and use and discard the appraisal of others when that appraisal does not fit in with our own best judgment.

What does this self-appraisal mean? How can it be turned into a stimulus which will goad us on to our best efforts? First, of course, it means looking ourselves squarely in the face and taking accurate stock of what we are and what we can become; it means recognizing our abilities and strengthening them, acknowledging our weaknesses and discarding them; it means holding ourselves superior to cheap thinking and cheap living. Self-appraisal means learning to win without boasting and learning to lose with-

IN BLACK AND WHITE

There is the first endeavor of the 1935-36 Lamron staff. Each issue of the paper is a stepping stone on the path to a successful publication. During the actual preparation of each, errors and crudities are revealed, which, once hurdled, will pave the way for improvement and progress.

We shall try to publish news—news when it was turned in by the Lamron reporters—news which is simultaneously sought by reporters, correspondents or publicity men outside of the school.

The Lamron should reflect the thinking of the best minds of the student body. The Lamron invites communications from students or faculty members. The Lamron should evaluate and interpret events in the light of the best interest of the students. This editorial writer feels that it is within the province of school editors to publish constructive criticism without encouraging purposeless and malicious comment.

It is, therefore, Lamron editorial policy to place service before gain; to give value for value received; and to strive ever to exceed what is expected of the staff.

WALLFLOWERS

ONS has no school regulation demanding participation, but something should be done about the bashful students who decline to enter into the spirit of student activities. The matter has been discussed repeatedly in regard to the social hour wallflowers, but those persons fall into the same category who insist they can't enter dramatics, play football, work on committees, or do anything else in the way of extra-curricular activities. Going to school, especially in an institution of higher learning, just for routine classes every day is like going to the fair without buying a hamburger or visiting the fairway.

Make your school life pay big dividends; it's the chance of a lifetime to make fast friendships and to get used to working with and for others.

CRIMSON RAMBLER

Dear Sue:

Well, well, here it is time to cease dreaming of the grand and glorious days of summer and take up the never-ending search for an education. It's a bit hard to concentrate on the books when there's a perfectly grand harvest moon overhead; at least it seems that some of our promising younger generation are finding it so. We'll just ask Velma Hill if it isn't the truth.

After looking over the new hopefuls I've decided that they are a definite asset to our dear old school. Of course we could do with a few more men. That's the eternal cry of the women in these parts.

Talking about men who can wear the clothes, I'd elect Tom Summer-ville for first place in that class — and he isn't even practice teaching!

If you ask for comment on the seniors, they're doing mighty well.

Some of the juniors were a bit disappointed to find out that one of those boys with the funny looking haircuts was none other than our student body Prexy. I'm afraid they are disillusioned for life. What a pity!

Social Hour is still known by the same name. I heard one of the newly initiated men remark to one of the multitude of women, "Some dance!" The reply was, "Some don't."

Wisely spoken words, sez I. I might suggest that the women be polite and offer their seats to all those of the other sex who stand around the entire evening.

For some unknown reason several of last spring's romances aren't what they once were. I guess Cupid decided to spend his time in the physical education department. Here's wishing our "Topsy" and Kirk happiness!

Well, perhaps I should turn to less frivolous matters. I saw some good looking clothes that were worn at the tea given for the new girls last week, both at the fashion review and about the rooms. Don't tell me that these Oregon Normal girls haven't the clothes, because I saw them there — especially Lavonne Sayers with a lovely red chiffon velvet formal, designed along Mid-Victorian lines. Miss Trotter was representative of a well-dressed faculty in a green knit suit with brown accessories. And for sport you should have seen Ruth Howe in a clever swagger outfit topped with a perky little hat — very nize!

Well, Susy dear, the class bells are calling me to work, but, before I bring this to a close I want to tell you about a new book in the library. Say, when I find time I'm going to get some apples, find a quiet spot and read "While Rome Burns," by Alexander Woolcott. From all reports it is a grand book that has eliminated the boring and uninteresting passages so often found in our modern works.

Right now I have to kill a problem in T. & M., so —

For ever and ever,
DOT.

Dr. Pennington Talks On Present Day Problems

"Friend or Frankenstein" was the topic of an address in chapel, on Wednesday morning, October 2, by Dr. Pennington, president of Pacific college.

Dr. Pennington, who has spoken in assembly on previous occasions, was introduced by Dr. Jensen. He discussed the problems of life in the present-day, illustrating his point by comparing the facts of astronomy and other sciences known today with those known in preceding ages and urging his hearers to see to it that their spiritual universe was correspondingly amplified to keep pace with the material.

No doubt you have seen the campus quadruplets—the ones with the pig shaves. In this issue we take great pleasure in exposing the private life of one of the foresome. This lucky fellow is Ross (Maxwell) Hart. In 1932-33 he attended O.N.S., but transferred to the University of Nevada in 1934. After spending one year there, he decided to return to Monmouth and become a teacher. Ross is a regular "old man track." He holds four school records and is bettered only by one person in high jump—that man, incidentally, is Walter Marty, the world's champion.

While in Nevada our local boy made good by breaking the broad-jump record (23 feet, three and three-quarter inches.) Seriously, Ross says he's turning over a new leaf, and that isn't a figure of speech either; he has decided to be a student, and it looks as though he means it.

At present, he is doing practice teaching in the intermediate grades of the Monmouth training school, but has high hopes of coaching.

WOLF HOWLS SPORTS

Hip 1-2-3 — 1-2-3-4 — The slanting autumnal rays of the sun shining down through apple yellow and green leaves of the stately poplars that silently guard over the football destinies of the crimson and gray from afar witness the swift maneuvering of our football team briskly running through their signals, getting in shape to carry on the football traditions of this institution.

Unlike other coaches who continually bemoan to the world their gloomy predictions of a gloomier season, our genial coach, Al Cox (named for the benefit of the newcomers) consistently maintains an optimistic forecast of the results of this season's games. It's great, Al, to have a coach with a happy outlook.

But, no wonder Al isn't downhearted. Look at the new material he has to supplement the Old Guard. There's wee Willie Williamson, little blond streak from Astoria, who alternates at quarter with Mahan; March Eyestone, one of the best of left-handed passers; Bob Mallicoat, flashy halfback; and Ted Lewis, rangy end. Starr, from The Dalles, has made a permanent position for himself at half. Hood River has supplied Ordway as reserve center. Hastings and Bronkey are vying for the position of end in very acceptable manner, as is Ray Nelson at tackle and Gibson at guard.

Saturday the boys go to Portland to tussle with the Portland branch of Albany college. This is expected to be a good game but this column has implicit faith that the outcome

Oregon Normal Defeats Albany

Wolves Tally Lone Score In Ragged Early Season Game

Coach Al Cox's Wolves, playing in the spirit of things, assisted Albany college toward a new national all-time record by handing them their 20th straight defeat in a raggedly-played game at Albany last Friday afternoon. Score 6-0.

The Wolves' lone touchdown came in the first quarter. A pass from Borden to Ystad gave them their score.

Albany received the ball on the kickoff and went for three first downs before the Wolves, receiving the ball on their 20-yard marker, immediately started a touchdown drive of their own. After going for five first downs, Ystad took the scoring pass and romped across the goal line.

The rest of the game was played on fairly even terms, the Wolves threatening twice and Albany threatening once, when they recovered a Normal fumble on the pedagogues' 16-yard line.

Both teams showed poor condition because of having had only one week's practice.

will be to our liking.

The fall tennis tournament promises to be a hotly contested affair with two lettermen fighting with each other and with several good new men for top honors. The women's section presents a like situation. All in all it will be a good tournament. Let's watch it!

someday, in Beaverton, his home town.

Jack Butterworth. What does that name mean to you? He is the student body president, is from Indiana, and is a member of Theta Delta Phi. And don't forget his basketball ability. Normal's games would have been an "easy go" for the opponents if it had not been for his ability to get the majority of the top-offs and for his ability on the floor. His height, piercing brown eyes, and winning personality has made him everyone's friend.

Our next victim is Mrs. Virgil Grant, who was Miss Hilda Top before August 17, 1935, but who is better known to us as "Topsy." This instructor offered very little information about herself, but at least we do know that "Bud" (Mr. Grant) dotes on her apple pies.

She, however, did tell us that she graduated from the Uofo, and taught one year in Seattle prior to her four years of work in Monmouth. When asked about her hobby she smiled coyly and said: "Making patchwork quilts." Here is a very choice bit of news, "Topsy," when at Oregon, accidentally threw the discus far enough to break the world's record of those days.

Male straphanger: Madam, you are standing on my foot!
Female Ditto: I beg your pardon. I thought it belonged to the man sitting down.

Gridsters Drop Game To PLC

Lutherans Utilize Breaks To Score A Pair Of Touchdowns

ONS lost in its second football tilt of the current season last Saturday when the gridsters saw their hosts, the Pacific Lutheran collegians, take advantage of breaks in a game black with penalties and win a 14 to 0 decision in Tacoma.

The two tricks of fate which turned the game were the Wolves' losing of the ball to the Lutherans on a questioned clipping penalty within the 10-yard line and again in the second quarter by a bobbled pass. Aside from the two scoring drives of the Tacomans, the greatest part of the game was played in their end of the field.

The Normal squad consistently gained through the PLC line and proved to be a combination that worked more smoothly than that which administered Albany college its 25th defeat last week. The Lutherans, however, presented one of the best ball teams of the school's history.

Mrs. Blackerby Honored With A Luncheon Saturday

Miss Hazel Kirk, teacher of physical education at Oregon Normal became the bride of Alva Blackerby of Milwaukie Friday, September 27, in Salem. Mrs. Katherine Larson, faculty member and Mr. Lewis Blackerby, brother of the groom, witnessed the ceremony.

Following the wedding supper at the home of Mrs. H. A. Talbot, the bride's aunt, the couple motored to the Oregon beaches.

The bride was complimented with an attractive 1:30 luncheon at the Independence Women's club rooms last Saturday. Wives of faculty and faculty women were bidden. The hostesses included the Mesdames Marie T. Miller, Don Virgil Grant, John E. Black and the Misses Fay Johnson, Margaret Wheeldon and Arleen Dyer.

The groom is a graduate of Oregon Normal and is now principal of the Milwaukie junior high school.

Theta Delta Phi Elects Kelsay; Make Program

Considerable business was transacted at the initial fall meeting of Theta Delta Phi, men's honorary scholastic fraternity. With nearly every member present, plans were made for the organization's program for the near future.

To replace officers who did not return, Grover Kelsay was elected vice-president; Mr. Christensen was chosen faculty adviser to act in Mr. Santee's absence; and Carl Black was elected assistant historian. Other officers, elected last May and taking office this fall are: Kenneth Stuart, president; Paul Stewart, secretary-treasurer; and Willard Berg, historian.

Plans for a fall initiation were discussed and it was decided to hold a joint initiation banquet with Sigma Epsilon Pi on an evening in mid-October. Rules of eligibility based on the new grade point ruling were discussed and settled.

Key To Progress

out making excuses. Accurate self-appraisal is but the taking of stock to determine personal assets and liabilities.

The poet gave to the world a beautiful thought when he wrote, "O loyal to the royal in thyself." In this brief line he calls to the highest in each of us, the royal in ourselves. This may be a mere figure of speech, a mere poetical gesture, to some. It will be, too, unless a flash of response comes from each of us as we hear that call again, "O loyal to the royal in thyself."

The theme is familiar, but its significance is not fully grasped. The thought becomes more meaningful the longer we ponder over it. If there is a royal self within each of us, then there is an aristocracy of citizenship seldom admitted but more powerful than now realized.

From now on we can think as a royal one would think; from now on we can live as a royal one would live. We can go forward knowing that there need never be any path too steep for us to climb or any road too rough for us to travel, for if we are loyal to the royal in ourselves we can go far beyond the limits set by what has been done or what is now being done. We can demonstrate a living faith that does not limit.

Faith alone will not be enough of course. There must be work, too. Someone has said that life's masterword is work. "With this magic word in one's heart, all things are possible. It is the touchstone of progress and the key to success." We have the capacity for more work than we ever do. Many times we forget the magic word and make motions as sluggards do, unthinking and clumsily. That is not the work which is the touchstone of progress. It is the work of leaden hands and an inert mind.

Boast Varied Athletic Sked

Oregon Normal school competes in intercollegiate athletics with normal schools and colleges of the Pacific Coast. In addition to intercollegiate athletics a comprehensive program of intramural sports is sponsored.

Athletic organizations which directly support the instruction in physical education are maintained for men and for women students.

The Women's Order of the O, membership in which is determined by a point system, is pledged to cultivate and uphold high standards of sportsmanship. The Order of the O includes all men who have been awarded the official O in athletics.

Additional information on these organizations may be secured in the library.

living faith that does not limit. She refused to let tragic physical handicaps bind her. Stevenson recognized the limitations of a frail body, but he refused to let his body set limits for his mind. Booker T. Washington knew the limitations of race, but he had a living faith which led him to the front ranks of those who serve effectively. For O'Henry, the prison was a workshop from which came stories that have given pleasure to people everywhere. The world would have set limitations for each of these, but they overcame them as you should the ones that others would set for you. Whether you are in school or in business, you will need resolutely to turn your back on much that is past, accurately to appraise yourself and your abilities, and constantly to demonstrate the living faith that does not limit.

Sally Says So

BY THERESE NELSON

"Hello everybody"—with apologies to Kate Smith—but Sally does mean it and wishes all the new students a great big welcome. Here are a few tips on things Sally has seen around and she wants me to send them on to you.

Of course everyone wants their rooms to be as attractive as possible so here's a real bargain for the would-be homemaker at WILLIAMS' DRUG STORE in "Indep." Vitro Ware vases, you know, the kind that look like alabaster but really isn't, well really they're the most attractive things we've seen yet and with so many lovely fall flowers and ivy vines — my dears you have no idea how little care ivy vines take — Oh! yes, the price — two of them for only 25 cents. Isn't that a surprise?

Next we come to clothes and what girl isn't thinking about clothes at this time of the year! So while we are still in "Indep." you really should go down to the FRENCH MILLINERY & ART SHOP and see the new stock of divine blouses they have in. Every color, size, design and material—in plaids, polka dots and prints. The nice thing about them too is the price, in fact they range from $1.50 on up. Blouses are so practical that I'm sure you will all want at least two.

Here is some news! Mrs. Gillette of the VOGUE SHOP has started a hosiery club. Now here comes the best part of it all—every time you buy a pair of hosiery you get a reduction on them. One cent for the first pair and so on till by the time you have bought a dozen pair, you actually save the price of one pair.

Then there are some of those adorable wood fiber flowers that look just like the real "Mc-Coy," all you need to do when they wilt is to put them in the ice box and they come out just as fresh as new. The cost? only $.50.

Sally will tell you about more lovely things she has seen, in the next issue. — Be seen' you!
