Edgar Smith Named Graduation Speaker

Edgar W. Smith, president of the state board of higher education, will be commencement speaker for more than 300 graduates at Oregon College of Education on Wednesday, June 4.

Title of Smith's address will be "The Eventful Voyage." He will be introduced by Dr. Roben J. Maaske, president of OCE and the state's director of elementary teacher education. Rev. A. L. Lonsberry, pastor of the local Evangelical United Brethren church, will give the invocation.

Special recognition will be accorded members of the class of 1902 meeting for their 50th anniversary.

The college band, under the baton of Charles Stowell, instrumental director of the department of music, will play a prelude, and the processional and recessional marches.

A vocal ensemble will offer several numbers. Girls singing will be Edithanne Simpson, Salem; Donna Lee Young, Canby; JoAnne Mahan, Portland; Marilyn Knaupp, Dallas; Glenna Parks, Scio; Nada Rust, Blachly, and Arlene Utt, Estacada, with Darlene Glaske, Hillsboro, as accompanist.

George Watts of Amity, a senior student, will sing two selections.

Dr. Maaske, OCE president, will confer degrees on 200 graduates and award diplomas and certificates to more than 100 others.

Rev. Bulkley Delivers Baccalaureate Sermon

The baccalaureate service was held Sunday, June 1, in the Campbell hall auditorium. The program began with Mrs. Denise Murray playing several solos on the organ. The choir sang a processional, "Come Thou Almighty King," directed by Mrs. Florence W. Hutchinson. The processional march was played on the organ by Mrs. Murray.

The invocation followed, delivered by Reverend Walter L. Nyberg, pastor of the Methodist church in Independence. The OCE college choir then sang the Cherubim Song. A scriptural reading from Matthew 5:1-16 was given by Wilmer E. Lampa, the senior class president. Members of Wesley sang the hymn "Tomorrow."

The sermon "There Is an Open Door" was by Reverend Robert D. Bulkley, minister of the Federated churches, Corvallis. The benediction by Reverend Nyberg followed several selections by the choir. The recessional was "Festival March" played on the organ by Mrs. Murray.

Following the baccalaureate service a reception for the graduates and their parents was held in the library building.

NEW HEALTH NURSE . . . Miss Edith L. Olson has been appointed as college health nurse and director of health service at Oregon College of Education, beginning June 1.

Miss Olson replaces Miss Elsie Fischer, who is studying this summer at the University of Oklahoma in preparation for a position overseas next year.

Dr. Roben J. Maaske, president of OCE, announced the appointment.

Miss Olson has an extensive record of service in the field of nursing education. She has served as supervisor of nurses in various hospitals and as advisory nurse for state and county departments of health. Recently she has served with the National Red Cross in San Francisco.

Miss Olson received the RN degree from the Swedish hospital school of nursing in Minnesota and completed the bachelor of science degree at the University of Minnesota.

Reception To Be Held

An informal reception for the president of the State Board of Higher Education, Edgar W. Smith of Portland, and Mrs. Smith, will be held in the faculty lounge in the library building immediately following the graduation exercises on Wednesday, June 4.

Awards Presented at Special Convocation

Wednesday, May 28, the annual award assembly was held in the auditorium of Campbell hall. This gathering marked the end of student body activities for the year. Student body president George Turner presided over the meeting.

After brief announcements by Miss Joan Seavey, dean of women, and President Roben J. Maaske, Ivan Parker announced the winners of the full state tuition and PTA scholarships respectively.

New student body officers were then sworn in. These included: Dale Cannon, president; Don Wickstrand, first vice-president; Gerry Ratto, second vice-president; and Peggy Scott, secretary. The officers-elect were sworn in by the officer whom each is to replace.

The commissioners, who were also sworn in at this time are: Eugene Smith, assemblies; Howard Sullivan, clubs; Marjorie Ford, publicity; Dick Balch, intramural; Harry Pease, athletic publicity; and Eleanor Fulmore, social.

Chairman of the meeting then introduced Joan Forbes, new Lamron editor; Beverly Briem and Wanda Nelson, co-editors of next year's Grove; and Barbee Sherman, new financial secretary.

Miss Edna Mingus, former head of the OCE English department, now retired, presented the Eloise Buck Memorial award for a composition showing appreciation for literary work. The award, which went to Eileen Going, is presented annually at OCE in memory of Miss Buck, a member of the English staff here from 1934 to 1942 who lost her life in a disastrous hotel fire in Atlanta, Georgia, in 1946.

The Phi Beta Kappa award to the outstanding freshman girl with the highest grades for fall and winter terms went to Iva Mae Speed. The award, from the Willamette Valley Association of Phi Beta Kappa, was presented by Miss Joan Seavey.

The Julia McCullough Smith annual award for outstanding senior woman went to Ann Engberg.

Miss Ruth Lautenbach then made the following awards for girls' athletics: Small block "O's" were given to Betty Carey, Nancy Hildreth, Ruth Ingle, Nada Rust, Beth Worden and Frances Williams. Miss Lautenbach then presented sweater awards to Idel Cahill and Genevieve Poole.

Men's tennis awards went to Ken Alberts, Robert Benson, Verne Buhler, Douglas Nelson, Charles "Chuck" Pinion, and David Summers. These presentations were made by Mr. Ruckman.

Baseball awards, presented by Dr. Robert Livingston, went to LeRoy Coleman, Roger Dasch, Jack McCrae, LeRoy Vanover, John Robinson, Jim Bowman, Robert Funk, Bill Palmquist, Ronald Camp, Arnold Sittser, Robert Downing, Darrell Davis, and Ralph Miller. He also presented the basketball awards which went to Bob Bushnell, Bill

Graduation Ceremonies To Be Tape Recorded

Graduation ceremonies on Wednesday, including musical selections and the commencement address, "The Eventful Voyage" by Edgar Smith, president of the State Board of Higher Education, will be broadcast over KOAC.

The program will be heard in a delayed presentation the time of which will be announced later.

Tape transcription will be done by Instructional Materials Center personnel who will make a dual recording, using two recorders, in order to capture the complete ceremony.

OSC 'Squares' Draw D'OCE'do Clubbers

On Tuesday evening, May 26, 11 members of the D'OCE-do club and their adviser, Anne Millan, traveled to Oregon State college to attend a square dance held in the basement of the Memorial Union building.

The group composed of Helen Taylor, Carroll Johnston, Gerry Ratto, Lucille Goyak, Harry Pease, Andy Sandwick, Gene Smith, Ruth Chrisman, Rosalie McClintock, Don Brostrom and Larry Dawson, demonstrated the "Chicken Hop" at intermission.

Eileen Going Composition Receives Eloise Buck Memorial Award

Editor's note: Following is the text of the prize winning composition in the Eloise Buck Memorial award competition for 1952.

ETHAN FROME

By Eileen Going

For many years Edith Wharton had wanted to write a novel about life in New England. Hers was not to be a rose-colored account. She attempted, however, to depict the grimness and even the horror as she had seen it in the lives of the people in one of those derelict mountain villages. The story "Ethan Frome" is an excellent example of her attempt to portray this life.

Ethan is introduced as a broken man of 51, and then returning to his youth, the tragedy behind his life is revealed through the eyes of a visitor from a larger world. The narrator is removed from the focal point and attention is centered upon an ever-vicious triangle involving Ethan, Zeena his wife, and her young cousin, Mattie Silver.

Ethan elicits our sympathy because he has had to sacrifice his ambitions to take care, one after another, of his father, his mother, and his wife. He had married Zeena, a woman seven years his senior, in a reaction of fear at the loneliness of the life he has lived, and she, being a professional invalid, bitter and scheming, has fastened upon Ethan the powerful grasp that comes with utter selfishness. When she notices the growing affection of Ethan for Mattie, whom she had brought into the house as hired girl, she pursues ruthlessly her plan for ridding herself of her rival.

One of the chief claims of the novel to importance lies in the skill with which the petty circumstances of life bind Ethan into helplessness. His youthful ambitions had had been thwarted when he had had to return home to care for his parents, and again when he had married. Life took on a new meaning for Ethan when Mattie Silver came to live with them, but his poverty and his incapacity for a mean action prevent him from leaving Zeena and going off with Mattie to begin a new life. Ethan and Mattie see their one possible release from Zeena's powerful grip as they are making their last coast down the big hill—and this is to crash into the huge elm tree at the bottom. The web is drawn even tighter when the attempt at suicide is unsuccessful, leaving Mattie a helpless invalid and Ethan a twisted survivor. With an ironic touch, Zeena rises from her invalidism to take care not only of Ethan but also of Mattie, whose complete helplessness removes her from the realm of Zeena's physical jealousy. And together in their lonely farmhouse the three must face the constant reminders, implications, and misery of that eternal triangle.

Clearly and finely Edith Wharton portrayed in her stories of New England the effects of environment upon her characters. She saw, as did two of her predecessors, Mary Wilkins Freeman and Sarah Orne Jewett, that life in this region was dominated by feminine forces, although her stories brought out the larger and more significant issues and the deeper meanings behind this fact.

Looking back into the history of New England, one immediately discovers a glaring reason for the dominance of feminine factors. As far back as pre-Revolutionary War days men began leaving this region. They may have been prompted by poor land, bitter cold winters, and high taxes, but fundamentally some uncommon urge in their own natures impelled them to see for themselves what lay beyond the mountains. And during the gold rush days, the exodus was so great as to have a devastating and lasting effect upon the remaining population.

Edith Wharton saw the influence of this vast migration as it was evidenced by the inarticulateness and granite-like quality of the people, and by the insanity, incest, and moral decay hidden away behind the paintless house-fronts of the villages and farms. And she chose not to ignore these facts! Her "Ethan Frome" was among the first fictional accounts of the not-so-rosy New England life. Her characterizations in the book were outgrowths of actuality. The situations in which Ethan, Zeena, and Mattie found themselves involved exemplified the similar circumstances experienced by those struggling New Englanders.

However, it is the stark simplicity of "Ethan Frome," not the misery, which makes it a fine novel. It is the struggling of Ethan to taste one moment of happiness, and the iron logic of the situation in which a nature like his could not abandon a duty even if it wrecked his life. There was a potential greatness in his soul, otherwise there would be no reason for the story.

IN RETROSPECT

It seems to be common procedure for someone to write an editorial at the completion of each school year, commending the outgoing senior class for services rendered. Doubtless this is fine sentiment, and those who are departing deserve recognition for outstanding contributions to their institution.

On the other hand, it seems only proper that the graduates express their appreciation to their alma mater for a great many things. The first of these would be a most amiable tenure of attendance. The petty bickerings which beset many an institution are at a minimum here at OCE, and the campus-wide atmosphere is one of congenial friendship.

A second, and probably most important, is a good education. Doubtless there are universities and colleges in the Pacific Northwest with a higher scholastic rating than ours, but the fundamentals are not forgotten in the scheme of planning at Oregon College of Education.

The pleasant memories which the graduating seniors will take with them must bear their share of attention, also. Reverie is a personal thing, and each in the ranks of the departing seniors will have his own sentimental attachment. But all will look back toward the undergraduate days with a proud and sorrowful feeling. Proud to have been a part of the college, and sorrowful that the fleeting hand of time has plucked them away so soon. —D.J.H.

Frosh Enjoy Recent Outing at Neskowin

Members of the freshman class rented a bus and left for the coast (Neskowin beach) Sunday morning, May 25, and spent the day on the sunny beach. The students were able to make this trip with money they netted on the freshman talent show which they presented winter term.

Dr. and Mrs. Francis Haines accompanied the group. Dr. Haines is the freshman class adviser.

Pink-Blue Shower

Mrs. Keith L. Houk was guest of honor at a pink and blue shower in the faculty lounge of the OCE library Saturday evening, May 24.

Theme of pink and blue was carried out in all decorations, the table accessories and the refreshments.

Mrs. Dessa Hofstetter was hostess with Miss Emma Henkle assisting in serving.

Many lovely gifts were received by the guest of honor, who noted a definite trend toward a pink majority among the presents.

Those attending included the Mesdames Marie Miller, Lester Wood, Henry Ruark, John Stump, Merle Lowe, Floyd Albin and Geo Cooper; the Misses Katharine Arbutnot, Faye Johnson, Peggy Scott, Jane Dale, Ruth Lautenbach and Emma Henkle.

Mrs. Houk has been instructional materials secretary and secretary in the news bureau at the college for the past three years.

An Ode to a Cuspidor

By Jim Hastings

An ode is seldom written to
The simpler things in life
The common trend of penmanship
Is passion, pain, and strife.

So I should like to write an ode
To something that I feel
Is worth the effort I extend —a cuspidor of steel.

An urn half-filled with water pure
Each bright or cloudy day
So men can spit tobacco juice
Till twilight's final ray.

A metal cup of graceful form
That no one seems to note
Except to gently rid themselves
Of sputum from their throat.

Men have referred to cuspidors
With words that were not kind
But most of those who curse them
So

Are like a mule's behind.

So, with these words, I'll close my ode.
And go my weary way,
I'll empty out the cuspidors
As is my job each day.

The Monmouth Post office will adopt a "Summer" time schedule starting on Sunday, June 1. Window opening will be at 7 a.m. and closing at 5 p.m. According to Postmaster Gentle, this is not a "daylight time" matter but just an attempt to better adjust working hours to the public demands.

A-V Operators Desired at IMC

Job openings for selected persons as operators are available in the Instructional Materials Center for summer session. Previous experience is helpful but not necessary.

Working with all types of instructional equipment is a real learning as well as earning experience. Operators set up, operate under class conditions, and do simple maintenance on motion picture projectors, film strip and opaque projectors, record and transcription players and tape recorders.

Pay is at standard student rate and is "portal to portal"—from the time equipment is picked up at the center until it is returned after the teaching presentation.

Full opportunity to learn and to study all models of instructional presentation with center equipment is given operators, and a short training course assures "know-how" before you are expected to handle equipment on a job.

Earn and learn at the same time in the center this summer. See Mr. Ruark for details at once.

Leaders Meet for Training Program

The elementary leadership training class conducted by the State Department of Education was well attended. The class was held Saturday on the OCE campus and was conducted by Irene Hallberg and Elizabeth Rader, elementary supervisors of the state department.

The local meeting was under the direction of Florence Beardsley, elementary supervisor of the state department of education in connection with the fall institute for teachers.

The following leaders and officials were present: Mrs. Helen Baker, Benton county school superintendent; Josiah Wills, Polk county superintendent; Miss Rader and Miss Hallberg of the state department.

Leaders from the two counties in attendance were Edna DeHaven, Mary Brent, Nell Briggs, Bill Emigh, Nada Clark, Irma Wethrell, Jeanne Shelton, Beulah Craven, Gertrude Patterson, Opal Carleson, Eugene Brown, Lenna Waddingham, Mary Helen Gwinn, Earl Pearson, Merrie Lou Hilton, Bill Hoffer and Ray Godsey. Lucille Millsap and William Wilson were recorders and Dorothy V Taylor was chairman.

EDITORS' NOTE

The Editors of the Lamron would like to express their appreciation to the Monmouth Herald, and its proprietors, who made the publication of this paper possible. Eric and Irving Swenson have been more than co-operative, and it is their work that has made the Lamron what it is. Frequent stories and pictures have been lifted from the Herald for use in the college paper, providing a more colorful and informative news weekly.

Preparation Completed

Final preparation on a statement of aims and objectives for OCE, underway for some months, has been completed and the statement will be discussed by the full faculty at a faculty meeting in the lounge in the library building on Monday, June 2, at 4 p.m.

Miss Jane Dale has chairmanned the committee preparing the statement, with aid and assistance from groups and individuals comprising the entire faculty.

Service Discontinued

No operator service for presentation or equipment delivery will be available this week from the Instructional Materials Center. Preview or self-use of equipment is possible for persons qualified to operate it.

Ruth Carter Named To OSC Library Post

Miss Ruth H. Carter, former professor of English at OCE, has been selected as director of the Beaver Room at the Oregon State college library. She was appointed by Dr. William H. Carlson, OSC librarian.

Miss Carter will be in charge of the operations of the Beaver Room, which served as the OSC center for English and American literature and the works of modern novelists, as well as a display and browsing center for children's books. All new volumes acquired by the library are first exhibited in the Beaver Room.

Her more than 25 years of college teaching experience and specialized study beyond the master's degree as well as her own intense interest in literature make her an asset to the library staff, Dr. Carlson said.

Miss Carter has been serving as a general extension division professor for courses in American, English and world literature. Her groups have been organized in Lebanon, Taft and Newport. She will continue to teach for general extension, offering her next course in Newport this fall.

Besides a master's degree in education from Boston university, Miss Carter has done special work on children's literature and reading at Harvard, and has completed course work and special study on the doctoral level at Boston university. She studied abroad at an English university for one term.

She was formerly for many years a member of the faculty at Framingham State teacher's college in Massachusetts, leaving that college, to come west to the state of Oregon in 1945. In 1948, at the invitation of Dr. H. M. Gunn, she joined the faculty at OCE, remaining until 1951. Her successor at OCE was Dr. Wm. DeClark, who is joining the faculty at San Francisco State college in California this fall.

Awards Presented

Palmquist, Harold Pitcher, Charles Pinion, Frank Rosenstock, LeRoy Vanover, Roger Dasch, and Howard Sullivan.

Coach Bill McArthur presented track awards to Gene Harp, Bill Arnold, Wally Kent, Jim Riggs, Norman Berreman, Keith Holdorf, Hubert "Blackie" Deaver, and Ronald Ball. Outstanding athlete award went to Bill Palmquist for his all-around participation in athletics.

Miss Ann Millan presented the girls' tennis awards to Mabel McKenzie, third year award; Bertha "Bunny" Walton, and Eleanor Fulmore, second year awards; and to Doris Lohrke and Wanda Nelson, first year awards.

Dr. Maaske then presented the "Who's Who in American Colleges" awards. These went to Bob Norton, who is in the service, Margot Burridge, Bertha Walton, George Turner, Walter Reid, Betty Lammi, and Margaret Ann Engberg.

Awards were made to the Grove and Lamron editors, Mabel McKenzie and Leslie Furer, and to the business managers of these publications, Clifford Eberhardt and Jim Riggs. George Turner also introduced the photographers Tom Huebner and Jim Spear.

Executive council cups and commissioner citations were presented to John Pizutti, first vice-president; Betty Anderson, second vice-president; Kay DeClark, secretary; Norma Barackman, assembly commissioner; Marilyn Hall, publicity commissioner; Jack McCrae, athletic commissioner; Bunny Walton, social commissioner; Jim Dyal, athletic publicity commissioner; Bill Bear, yell king; Mary Ann Hudson, song queen and Theresa Guisinger, song leader.

President of the Student Body George Turner was presented the ASB award by Dr. Maaske. Dr. Maaske then gave praise and mention to those students who did not receive awards, but who have shown good leadership and scholarship at OCE.

Margot Burridge presented the outstanding music student award to Dan Unruh. This award was given in memorial of Jacqueline Stuckert Graham.

Wilmer Lampa, president of the senior class, presented the senior class gift to Dr. Maaske. This gift is a faculty directory which will file the names of all faculty members, student body officers and possibly class officers.

An invitation was extended the seniors by Mrs. Minnie Andrews to become members of the OCE Alumni Association. Wilmer Lampa received the memberships on behalf of the senior class.

George Turner closed the assembly by turning over the gavel to Dale Cannon, the new student body president.

Final Hickory Marks Released

McRae Leads Batters on .500 Average

The final release of OCE batting averages for the 1952 baseball year show first-sacker Jack McRae as the No. 1 swinger, with a .500 well-riding mark. McRae picked up seven hits in 14 times at bat after joining the club in mid-season, and produced a home run and a double in his efforts. The only other regular to top the .300 mark was burly left fielder Bob Downing, who clubbed out 20 safeties in 66 appearances for a .303 average. Downing was also the extra-base king of the Wolves, booming almost half of his hits for additional distance. His bingles included four doubles, two triples and four home runs.

The team, as a whole, came up with a respectable .248 stick mark, with 134 hits in 541 times up. The total included 35 extra-base wallops in the 16 contests.

In the pitching department, right-hander Arnie Sittser led the field with a 1-0 record, the single win garnered at the expense of the Oregon State Penitentiary Greys.

Bill Palmquist rated second with four wins and three losses, while southpaw Bob Funk wound up even at 4-4.

Harp Named as Most Valuable

Gene Harp, 100 yd. and 220 yd. dash star and ace broad-jumper for the Oregon College of Education track squad for the past three years, has been chosen as the most valuable member of the 1952 team by members of the squad. Harp has consistently placed in the sprint events, stepping the century at a consistent 10.2 and the 220 in 22.8. His broad-jumping efforts have been regularly above the 20-foot mark, and have gained him first place honors in most of the meets he has entered.

Harp finished the 1952 season as the top scorer on the squad, and in so doing, earned his third varsity award.

Palmquist Named As Top Athlete

Tow-headed Bill "Whitey" Palmquist, a three-sport gunner and a three-year letterman, was chosen last week as Oregon College of Education's most outstanding athlete by a board composed of a campus-wide selection of athletic representatives. The award was presented at the special assembly on Wednesday, May 28.

Palmquist is a graduate of Commerce high school in Portland, where he gained all-city recognition in both football and basketball. Before coming to Oregon College of Education, he lettered as a first-string fullback at Linfield college in 1948. He has gained three varsity awards each in baseball and football, and performed in a varsity basketball role during the 1951-52 season.

In the past year, Palmquist has seen first string action as an offensive fullback and defensive halfback with the undefeated Wolves' football squad, as a regular guard on the basketball platoon, and as a starting pitcher in the baseball season just concluded.

Athletes Gain Varsity Awards

Sixty-Four Letters Given at OCE

Oregon College of Education wound up a successful athletic season by awarding 64 varsity awards in a special convocation last week. The Wolves notched Oregon Collegiate Conference championships in both football and baseball, and garnered second place berths in track and basketball.

Beacon Plaque To Be Displayed

The BEACON sportsmanship trophy, awarded to Oregon College of Education for outstanding courtesy during the NAIB District 2 basketball playoffs, has been received by the OCE athletic department, and will be placed on display this week.

The 9 by 12 inch brass plaque is of a simulated black mahogany finish, and is mounted on a sturdy wooden backing. An engraved red banner bearing the words "Dist. NAIB No. 2", set off with a basketball and a laurel wreath is the centerpiece of the award. Within the wreath is the picture of an athlete, circumscribed by the words, "Honesty, Fairness and Courtesy."

Below the centerpiece is written the message: "The Beacon Perpetual Sportsmanship Award, Presented annually by the Beacon, University of Portland Newsweekly, to the team selected by officials and participating coaches as displaying the best sportsmanship in the District 2 playoffs of the National Association of Intercollegiate Basketball Tournament."

Also inscribed on the plaque are the names of the institutions which have won the award since it was inaugurated in 1950.

Another regular term at Oregon College of Education is drawing to a close, and with it the most successful athletic season in recent history. Not only did the Wolves cinch a pair of conference championships, but also they earned a berth in the NAIB district basketball playoffs.

A word should be said here about the work of Bob Livingston, who has brought real basketball and baseball back to OCE. The likeable Missourian has accomplished wonders in his first year, and with a host of lettermen back, could equal or better his record next year. He has shown that character is an integral part of the athletic scene. May his tenure be a long and successful one.

Dr. Robert Livingston

A quick rundown of the athletic success of OCE against its state supported cousins shows the following outcome in major competition, including football, basketball, baseball and track:

OCE 5	SOCE 2
OCE 4	OTI 3
OCE 5	EOCE 2
OCE 5	Vanport 2

OCE 19 Opponents 9

In football, of course, Bill McArthur's Wolfpack went undefeated in conference play, and added a 48-6 thumping of Southern Oregon to the books. In the casaba sport, the locals dropped SOCE three times out of five and fought the OCC race down to the final wire, splitting their series with Vanport, the league kings, two and two. The baseball picture saw OCE winning four of five in loop play, and with it, the conference crown. Eastern Oregon dominated the track scene, defeating Monmouth twice, one for the loop gonfalon. Oregon College dropped Vanport twice and aced the Southern Oregon Red Raiders in a singleton.

The forecast for next year is decidedly tentative, with graduation calling some of the outstanding athletes and the armed forces others. But it is our prediction that the doldrums are not yet in sight. A fine coaching staff will see to that.
