IT'S WORTH THE STRUGGLE

There seems to be a tendency at the beginning of every college year for some students to drop out of school. In many cases this comes as a result of a realization of a student that he was a mistake for himself. College is never a mistake if the material learned and the contacts made while in an institution of higher learning are traded against the day. Many times, the students who drop out of school are the same ones who never gave college life a real try. There are volumes written about adaptation to college life, and in almost every manuscript, great stress is put upon the attitude of the individual.

People who enter an institution of higher learning with an "I don't really care" attitude or an attitude which is irresponsible in other respects, are most often the ones who quit school and later in life complain bitterly. Such individuals are really wasting their time and the time of others by entering college in the first place.

It is true that in these crucial years when many people are unusually high-strung, adaptation to college life may be rather difficult. It is necessary in many instances to trade the hard work and unpleasantness of the present for the satisfaction and success that will be achieved when college halls are far behind.

College is not a mistake. The mistake may occur in the attitude of the individual! There are students who will undoubtedly feel from time to time that the work is too difficult and that it is beyond their ability to complete such tough requirements. This is also a fallacy. There are few individuals in this world who, by hard work and perseverance, have failed at last to achieve a greater measure of satisfaction and happiness in life.

Students Invited to Submit Original Poetry

The National Poetry Association cordially invites Oregon students to submit verse for publication in the Annual Anthology of College Poetry. There is no change or fee for inclusion of verse in the anthology. The author's name, address, and the date the work is received will appear in the anthology; the student will thus have an opportunity to have his work in print, and to compare such work with that of others of the same age and in the same cohort.

Manuscripts should be written up with care and attention to the various rules of the Association. Each effort must bear the following: Name of author, home address and college attended. They are to be sent to the National Poetry Association, 3218 Selby Ave., Los Angeles 36, California before November 9, 1951.

Ten Local Ministers Entertained by Measke

Ten ministers of churches in Independence and Monmouth met recently upon invitation at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Homer J. Measke, president of OCE, for an informal social time and discussion of cooperative religious programs for students of the colleges.

Dr. Measke pointed out that desire that each OCE student find a church home of his choice where he could attend services, social activities and see some of the services of the church and community. The local pastors were invited to participate in OCE functions and to get acquainted with students. Various plans were developed for close working relationship between the college and the churches of the two communities.

At the conclusion of what will probably be remembered as baseball's greatest major league season, we should like to say a few words in retrospect. Prognostication is too pernicious a business, so we shall confine our efforts to review.

Numerous records have fallen by the wayside in almost every department, but the most significant improvements have been in the realm of pitching. Indeed, three days of the so-called "lively ball," fire hurlers could be expected to quell the heavy history as did the 1915 grip. Probably the greatest achievement belongs to Burry Ablow Reynolds, the Oklahoma Indian who draws his pay check from the New York Yankees. On Friday past he equaled a record set in 1939 by Johnny Vander Meer, by tossing his second no-hitter of the season. Earlier this year "Burry" Robert Feller turned in the third hitless contest of his career, thus joining a very select group.

Cliff Chambers won the third major league to turn in a no-hitter, as he did the 1919 and 1925 in a sera-

The Wolfpack from OOE opens its defense of the Oregon Collegiate Conference football crown with a September 5 contest at the Klamath Falls field of the Oregon Tech Techs.
