Landscape Contracts Are Given

Contracts have been awarded for an extensive landscaping project for the OCE campus, totaling approximately $31,000. According to Dr. Bird, the project is intended to enhance the campus aesthetics and provide a better environment for students and faculty.

Landscape architects are flocking to the placement service at the Portland Construction Company, a leading landscaping firm in the northwest. The project involves complete landscaping and lawns for the new library building, refurbishing the plantings around all of the other main buildings, construction of new sidewalks, and landscaping around West House and Arnold Arm, with a fill to raise the sidewalk in front of the latter building.

Plans and specifications were prepared for the project by David J. Thompson, architect, of Portland. This project is being financed in part by the Oregon State Bond Commission and in part by private funds. The project will begin in about one week.

Funds for the campus renovation project at OCE were secured in president Bird's name through a special appropriation by the State Senate of Higher Education.

Council Has Week-End Retreat at Nelscott

A cluster of campers and camp counselors were housed at Nelscott, May 18, as part of the summer training program for newly appointed counselors. The group included the old and new student-body officers, social-educational and athletic, and athletic council members.

The group left Friday at 4 p.m. in private cars with Miss Jean Sayre acting as chaplain for the group. Students stayed at the Nelscott apartments in Neskow.

All of the plans considered for the group during meetings on Friday and Saturday were planned for the next year's calendar, revision of the present constitution, ways and means of raising funds, and more concrete outlining concerning the various council and commissioner positions.

Those attending were Miss Sayre, Mark Berry, Paul Lee, Bob Norton, Joyce Martin, Margaret Mills, Ted Sherbak, Homer Ollert, Byron Hideman, Jeanne Darby, George Turner, Eugene Blair, John Prueitt and Betty Anderson.

Zooology and Natural History Classes

Discover Gold in Cave at Depoe Bay

The zoology and natural history classes under the direction of E. F. Barrows and Mr. Don Humphrey, went on a field trip to the beach on Sunday, May 13.

The two groups met at Depoe Bay where they found some colorful sea urchins and then proceeded to the Devil's Pothole which had many specimens for the time.

Many ordinary things such as starfish and shells were found. A few small rock fish of a brilliant green hue were observed.

Much of the attention, however, was shifted to Lewis Hall and Bill Lottman when they discovered a narrow passage through a cliff or rock and sand. Since the tunnel was partially filled with water, the following week was spent in the passage and wheat-ridge ridge of the sea. Much to everyone's disappointment, the passage did not prove to be the secret hideaway for Captain Kidd's treasure. But Gary Black did find gold, foil's gold, that is.

The group returned to Depoe Bay and went through the square tunnels which they found interesting animals including octopus, chelates, etc., and two very friendly skunks.

Appreciation is given to those who willingly stuffed their cars with these OCE nature lovers.

Mental Hygiene Class

Tour Two Institutions

The Applied Mental Hygiene class visited two state institutions, Hillcrest, the girls' reform school, and the Oregon State Hospital, on May 15. At Hillcrest they were impressed with the well-paved road which passed through and saw the work, educational and recreational facilities provided for the girls. Mrs. Leni Smith, superintendent of the school, stressed the importance of the girls being given the opportunity to adjust to the "controlled environment" of the school. One of the students, commenting on the tour, said: "I didn't expect the conditions to be nearly as desirable as they are here."

At the Oregon State Hospital, the class attended the annual spring clinic at which time several of the patients were introduced and their case histories reviewed by the psychiatrist. The 'casestudy' was emphasized. The girls were introduced to the organization of the Oregon State Hospital, and the Oregon State Hospital's system for the care of the mentally ill. The students were impressed with the modern facilities provided for the patients. They were especially interested in the opportunity to view the various treatments available for mental illness.

Among the patients having physical illness for their brains were those suffering from schizophrenia, depression, alcoholism, and hypochondriasis. Patients suffering from schizophrenia and manic-depressive were also shown.

Education Classes Observe Teaching Methods in Salem Elementary System

Eighty students from Miss Henrietta Wulff's intermediate and upper grade education classes started out at 8 o'clock Friday morning to observe in the Salem elementary and junior high schools.

The group met at the administration building and divided into assigned cars. About 30 students visited Washington elementary school on the Silverton road and the others visited the various other elementary schools assigned.

The principals first explained the school routine and then asked how many students wished to eat lunch with the children in the cafeterias. She then introduced the students to individual teachers and the group divided to go into the classroom.

It was a good experience to be able to observe in schools not operated by a college, for a better picture of actual teaching conditions was gained.

The children in many of the rooms showed their visitors terms projects of interest. Some of the visitors were invited to help groups with their reading and music which added greatly to the experience.

In the afternoon members of the group had an opportunity to observe in Parish Junior high school. Their days were spent in English, social science, math, and P.E. classes as well as the rhythms class. The best part of the observation and the day was being allowed to take part in some of the funning.

"All Baba" Proves Dramatic Success

The story of All Baba and the Forty Thieves was written many years ago and has been told and re-told yet never grows old. Probably the most popular dream ever invented is the one in the which the poor man finds hidden riches by gaining access to buried treasure. The scheme of the robbers, hidden in old jars, being brought into the country and the man hunter transformed from poverty to wealth, plowing back his gains, maintaining the same life style, the story still is a popular one.

The theme of the Todd hall dance was the "Bucking Horn." Jan. Crenshaw was chairman, Mary Ann Hinson, referee, and Ann Engberg, music. The theme of the dance was a dancer, staggering the disguised rubber mule, almost childlike in its plot, is rarely matched for its entertaining qualities and dramatic power.

The story proved an ideal vehicle for dramatic training to prospective babies in the training school work on the student members of Oregon College of Music.

During the past week, the尽管 the students were not being pre pared for the May administration and no further tickets can be issued for May 7th.

Students who wish to take the test must secure, complete, and mail applications at once.
