Talent Show Has Variety of Acts

From cackling hens to the "Steel Guitar Rag," the student talent show, presented Thursday evening, July 19, provided a great variety of entertainment. Before a well-filled house, a total of 10 acts were presented.

The show was opened by Twila Tabler, who sang "Too Young," and "Because of You." Her piano accompaniment was by Gail Snow. Following this, Bill Butler gave a reading with the song, "In the Good Old Summer Time," serving as background music.

Lewis Holt and H. H. Hollyman, on electric steel guitar and electric guitar, then played "Mockingbird Hill," and "Steel Guitar Rag" with an encore number, "On Top of Old Smokey." A collection of Hawaiian numbers were presented by Cornelia Hoppe, Roberta Richards and Allie Lou Ohling, to a ukulele accompaniment. Ruth and Marvin Turner then sang two songs, "It Is No Secret," and a medley, with Marilyn accompanying them on the guitar. They, too, sang an encore number, "Quick Silver."

A group of girls from Miller house, Beverly Mulholland, Twila Tabler, Juanita Roberts, Kathryn Harbert, Gail Snow and Leslie Furer, acted out the "Shooting of Dan McCrew," while Jeanne Darby read the poem, which was written by Robert Service.

George Turner and Lewis Holt gave an egg-laying demonstration on harmonicas, after which a quartet composed of George and Marvin Turner, Gordon Johnson and Willis Love sang several selections "Were You There," a medley and "Alma Mater." Bill Butler gave another short reading and the program closed with group singing.

Master of ceremonies for the evening was Elmer Spencer, with George Ten Eyck directing. Appreciation is extended to all who helped in any way to make the talent show a success.

Kids Take Overnight Trip to Short Sands

On Friday the 13th the staff members of the summer recreation program—Mr. Ralph Carter, Ray Petty, Bonnie Vaught, Janet Osgood and Bill Marsters—counseled 35 children from the ages of 9 to 13 on an overnight trip to Short Sands Beach.

The bus left at the Monmouth elementary school amid the fond farewells of the mothers and the whoop and hollers of the children at 1:00 p.m. They arrived, bag and baggage, at their destination in mid-afternoon with seemingly no ill effects from the ride on the bus. The bus parked and the children began carrying their things down the half-mile walk to the beach. Things got rather heavy by the time the beach was in sight!

After the youngsters had picked a spot to put their sleeping bags and had a big swim it was time for supper. They evidenced great joy in eating their own burned wiener with some kool-aid, potato chips, pickles, marshmallows and cookies for the trimmings.

Things were cleared up and the group divided into smaller ones for hikes in and among the trees and rocks, and the beach. When everyone had returned he sat around the campfire and all talked, told stories and sang songs.

The last tired giggle was heard about 11:30 that evening when everything was quiet. But at 5:25 a.m., the little cherubs were all up and raring to go again.

The fire was rebuilt and scrambled eggs, bacon, toast, and cocoa (also left-over pickles for those with strong stomachs) were on the menu for breakfast. After everyone had eaten his fill the group again took excursions up and down the beach.

Camp broke up at 9:30 a.m. and the children again started the half-mile trek out. Everyone finally made it and the baggage was piled back into the bus while the little ones piled in, still whooping and hollering.

On the way home the bus seemed suddenly more quiet and finally not a sound was distinguishable except the purr of the engine. Several of the group including Mr. Carter and Bill Marsters imagined themselves in the land of nod. The bus reached home with everyone in a safe and sound condition about 1:30 p.m.

They were a little worse for the wear but had a good time.

Kaufman Has Fifteen In Primary Workshop

Miss Kaufman’s primary workshop consists of 15 members, who are working and sharing their ideas together. They also work with Mrs. Stoner’s primary workshop. They have been building up their room so teachers may come in and share their ideas.

They have had several interesting speakers and demonstrations in the past few weeks. Mr. Chambers spoke to them on the principles of art and then the teachers all participated in finger painting. Miss Strongman spoke to them on the care and safety of the playground, health and physical education programs. Mrs. Scott has also given a speech demonstration for them.

They have made observations in the primary wing of the Monmouth elementary school which gave them the opportunity to see other teachers in action.

Turner's Slants Baffle Linn Telephone Club

Mary Turner, OCE's baffling softball pitcher, turned in a beautiful one-hitter to handcuff the Linn County Telephone Company at Lebanon Saturday evening, July 14. The game, which ended 5-1, was Marv's third straight win and it brought the winning streak to eight for the Collegians.

Marv, a left-handed slow-ball pitcher, completely confused the Lebanon boys, striking out fire; three of these were the first three men up. OCE jumped into a two-run lead off George Watts' long double following singles by Marsters and Miller.

Linn County Telephone's lone run came in the fifth when their first baseman was advanced on balls, stole a base, and came in when Turner overthrow third, trying to catch him.

Harry Walters rapped out a beautiful long hit to left field in the sixth which was missed by the fielder, allowing Harry to come in behind two other men for the final score of 5-1.

The Collegians who made the trip and played were Bill Marsters, Marv Turner, George TenEyck, Don Kipp, Art Sperber, Ralph Miller, Ralph Hurst, Harry Walters, George Watts, Louis Holt, and the playing coach, George Turner. This group, with a few men changing each game, are the ones responsible for the eight straight wins so far this season.

Photography Lecture Announced for Tuesday

A simple and easy introduction to photography is available to all OCE summer session students interested in making pictures. That is the title of an illustrated talk making use of specially-prepared slides, to be presented Tuesday, July 24, at 7:30 p.m. in the Instructional Materials Center projection room in the new library.

Henry C Ruark, Jr, the center’s director, will use transparencies drawn from Eastman Kodak’s extensive library to make clear the essential elements in making good pictures. The talk will include consideration of basic steps in producing a photograph, beginning with the light-sensitive film. Exposure, camera adjustments, examples of good and poor composition, steps in developing a negative and making the positive print and enlargements will be shown.

More than 50 large salon prints, including prize-winning entries in the national high school photo contest for recent years, will be an exhibit before and after the lecture, and during the rest of the week.

A second slide lecture on Tuesday, July 31, at the same time will discuss “Tips on Kodachrome and on Kodacolor” for beginning and advanced color photographers. Examples of many types of color work from Kodax experts will be shown.

Mr Ruark has been making photos since grammar school days, starting with a home dark room “under the cellar stairs.” His experience includes several years as a commercial photographer, work with Associated Press and Acme Newsphotos, photo NCO of First Service Command Signal Corps laboratory in Boston headquarters during army service, and work as a photo and news editor for the Loeb papers in Vermont.

Collegians Extend Win Skein to Nine

The Collegians put on a show of batting power Tuesday evening, July 17, at the college field as they snowed under the Atlas Lumber team 11 to 7, making their ninth win of nine starts.

Art Sperber, right-handed Collegian pitcher, won his fifth game in a left-handed way as he allowed many hits in several innings but was always put ahead again by the lusty base hits of the college boys. The Collegians capitalized on their six hits for 11 runs while the Atlas Lumber team made only seven runs on seven hits during the game.

Ralph Miller, the smooth-playing shortstop of the summer school team, hit two for three during the evening to hold hitting honors for the home team. Harold Pitcher and Dick Vanderzanden ably called the game from the officials’ positions.
