Thompson Conference

Matt Thompson is back on the campus from his trip to Sacramento, California, where he went to attend the Pacific Coast Association of Physicists Conference. This conference was held to bring about some sort of special guidance and advisement for veterans. "The exchange of information by the various members attending this conference will help future work in this field," Mr. Thompson reported.

While away, Mr. Thompson accepted an invitation to attend a meeting of the Oregon section of the American Association of Physicists Teachers at Eugene. At this meeting there was a discussion of recent developments that came out of the war. The discussion became quite involved at times as most of the members are research physicists who spent a lot of time working on research projects that were of super-secret war plans. Mention was also made about the drain on the armed services and, from all indications, the numbers of promising men in the field of physics an opportunity to continue their research with the backing of the armed services.

Skit Night Friday Live

Final preparation will be made for Skit Night Wednesday and Thursday evening of this week. At this time the chairman of each group will call the special meeting to order. Those slips will designate what each organization is to perform.

Each group will have seven minutes for its skit. This time will include the setting up and taking down of properties. Groups are urged to have their props ready to set up in order to save time during each performance.

The judging will take place immediately after the last skit and during that time the Campbell club will serve punch.

Tickets will be sold at the main door for nine cents. The receipts will go to the veterans committee.

The program is to be held at 7:30 p.m. on Friday, November 21, in the auditorium of Campbell hall.

The Old West Lives Again

Hey, hey, "Pardner Gray" was the theme song for the participation of the Arizona Territory Friday evening, November 15, in Jessidie Todd hall.

Entertainment was furnished by the following: in order: Louis Krueger, a baritone; Barbara Kirsch and Betty Bohling, a singing duo, usually instructors in psychology; and Norene Mink and Alice Wilkinson in a street scene.

After refreshments of hot chocolate and espresso toast, Dona Curtis entertained with a bedtime story.

Australian Woman of OCE Veteran Arrives in America to Make Home

Many of us who have never been south of the Equator to that spacious continent of Australia, desire to know if these people are like ourselves. We are sure that one will find Mrs. William Bent­field, recently from Brisbane, Queensland, Australia, very much like any American young lady, with the exception that she is not really not very noticeable, however.

"Bill," as he is known to his mates, was stationed at Brisbane as a warrant officer with the U.S. army when he met his future wife, and after a 10-month courtship they were married, continuing to live in that city until Bill was sent to New Guinea. Joan continued to live with her parents, doing clerical work until she came to the United States last June. The couple have now been married four years, but his trips from New Guinea have not been too often.

One trip which he made by air was from Black Island where he had been stationed, and then traveled 2000 miles in time for the evening meal with his wife.

Mrs. Bentfield was born in the U.S. June 12, after a two-week trip through various states. The fellow was unwilling on the 8.8 Mariposa of the Matson Lines. Living accommodations were not too bad, although he did get quite warm below decks for sleeping, and the scenery was real very good, although it did get quite warm below decks for sleeping.

The fellow was unwilling to go to San Francisco, but he finally decided to go, and he arrived in the city about the second week in May. His wife arrived in the city about the second week in May. His wife arrived in the city about the second week in May.

There were about 800 passengers on the Mariposa, most of whom were veteran's families and one is to be with his husbands and four of whom were members of the guard which was at Honolulu, and here was the only excitement they went to New Guinea and upon returning back aboard in the evening tried to bring some excitement, but the only excitement was caused by the military police and the liquor taken away from them. This started the barrage of overripe fruit and vegetables with the crooked cabbages and band­ward the MPs. Joan admitted that most of the girls cheered the MPs because they were better looking. Upon her arrival in San Francisco she was met by her husband and they spent a week seeing the interesting sights of San Francisco.

Mrs. Bentfield says she plans to return to Australia for a visit in about two years, and she hopes to establish a home some place for a visit of six months or more if they cannot get an immigration visa by that time. There are only about 100 allowed annually from this country, and her future work in this field, Mr. Thompson remarked.

Mr. Thompson is looking forward to getting back to the armed services.
Burning the Midnight Oil

Burning the midnight oil is a common undertaking of every college student. Why is it necessary? Because Betty Coed has some gossip which she is sure to impart to her college friends. Although she says she has been working long hours, she has not only the midnight oil, but much of her energy is burned up, too, because of lack of sleep.

You not only need prepared assignments and knowledge to get passing grades, but you also need good health. One of the prerequisites for a standard of health is a good night's sleep.

Instead of spending those hours gabbing, use them in the preparation of assignments and try to "hit the sack" at an earlier hour. The results will show on that term report card.

.key to everlasting success

Philosophers agree that social life is a valuable factor in any civilization. This tenet is carried over into our campus life. Yet a more important role is played by the classroom.

Every student should take stock of himself and estimate how much of his time can be given to extra-curricular affairs. This estimation should not be one-sided. Each student should know his own mental capacity well enough to be able to balance his studies with his social life.

School is drawing to the end of another term and some of us are piling up along two weeks behind in our assignments primarily because of placing our extra-curricular affairs at the top of our agenda. Why not make a schedule now of the time you have for study? That time is the time that is needed for studies. The key to everlasting success is a happy medium between work and play.

Pay as little attention to discouragement as possible. Plough ahead as a steamer does, rough or calm in our clenched hands will be the weapon.

--Wm. L. Brownell.

"You did! How?"

"I just didn't do it." And that's the truth.

It is not possible to comprehend the magnitude of the emotional strain which students experience during the last week of the term. However, it is impossible to completely "hit the sack." The strain is cumulative, and although it is not always immediately apparent, it will eventually show up as mental or physical exhaustion.

faculty news

Miss Elizabeth Ronchelle and Miss Jane Seidel are in Longview, Washington, Thursday, November 7 and 8. Miss Ronchelle is serving as part of the executive committee for the Longview symposium on "Curriculum Development ."

Mrs. Eoin Fiechtner, Helen L. Caswell of Columbia University, spoke on "Making the Most of Students in Changing the Curriculum."

Mrs. Eoin Holt and Miss Dora Schaffrath, tied together by the Oregon College of Edu-

fall fashion added to ccym social list

According to the decision made at the CCYM meeting last Monday evening, folk dancing will definitely be on the social calendar.

folk dancing added to ccym social list

Because Betty Coed has some gossip which she is sure to impart to her college friends. Although she says she has been working long hours, she has not only the midnight oil, but much of her energy is burned up, too, because of lack of sleep.

You not only need prepared assignments and knowledge to get passing grades, but you also need good health. One of the prerequisites for a standard of health is a good night's sleep.

Instead of spending those hours gabbing, use them in the preparation of assignments and try to "hit the sack" at an earlier hour. The results will show on that term report card.

key to everlasting success

Philosophers agree that social life is a valuable factor in any civilization. This tenet is carried over into our campus life. Yet a more important role is played by the classroom.

Every student should take stock of himself and estimate how much of his time can be given to extra-curricular affairs. This estimation should not be one-sided. Each student should know his own mental capacity well enough to be able to balance his studies with his social life.

School is drawing to the end of another term and some of us are piling up along two weeks behind in our assignments primarily because of placing our extra-curricular affairs at the top of our agenda. Why not make a schedule now of the time you have for study? That time is the time that is needed for studies. The key to everlasting success is a happy medium between work and play.

Pay as little attention to discouragement as possible. Plough ahead as a steamer does, rough or calm in our clenched hands will be the weapon.

--Wm. L. Brownell.

"You did! How?"

"I just didn't do it." And that's the truth.
DIGGIN' RHYTHM

Greetings, cats, here's your Main Street boy tipsy in again for another little session of jive and con sounds. This Jump Children are sending your way this week with all sorts of new tunes.

Hot June releases Lester Young playing his own, "Hey, Lester Leaps In." Also hear Don Byas play "Cherokee," on old time with a new twist.

Leaps In." Also hear Don Byas Rich and "Nightmare." Claude Thornhill gem for any collection. Buddy Rich's "Dalvatore Sally" is a bum. It includes "Begin the Begin." Ethel Smith's samba-organ!

(Don't ever let anyone tell you that the barber shop quartet in 1914. It includes "Begin the Begin." Ethel Smith's samba-organ!) A brief review of his early experiences. His first duties were pesky and tiring, just scab jobs that most you bribe government inspectors with the smallest amount of preparation. When a bald-headed man returned from the curfew bell. The embarrassing night during my senior year in high school, I was caught ringing a "West house personality Number Two." Betty Sampson, sophomore, says, "When I was about ten, I was downtown with two of my friends and we were trying to hide from a girl who was being a constant nuisance. We hid in a store doorway and put two of our best friends to trip her. We were quite embarrassed when we had to pick up a well-dressed body and all her handbags."

Marc Halbert, freshman: "One night during my senior year in high school, I was caught ringing the curfew bell. The embarrassing part came the next morning when I had to appear in front of the boys. They just kept the peace."

Jack Findor, freshman: "I was a Sunday evening. For the first time in five years our family was having dinner together, with every member present. Since I had just arrived home the night before, I was more or less the subject of conversation. Consequently I asked the question, 'What are you accustomed to eating on Sunday nights?' Cold cuts; (many Scotch-Irish was my hasty, thoughtless reply.)"

THE MBTA DITTA FLI TO MEET

Theresa Delta Diti will have a luncheon at Arnold Arms on Thursday, November 31. Coffee will be served. Bring your own lunch.

The question of the week asked students on the OCE campus was: "Why was your most embarrassing moment?" The answers received are as follows:

Viola Robinson, ex-WAC: "My visit to the famous wax museum in London affected my most embarrassing moment. The museum is filled with the most life-like figures of people from George Washington to Mickey Rooney that I have ever seen. As my friends and I walked the wax figure of Lincoln, I hit him lightly in the stomach and said, ' nowadays Artie Shaw cut out a whole new repertoire, I'm turning it into my horror and embarrassment, he laughed, smiled and walked towards me. I had to be encroached on the wrong choir, I was my first love."

The museum is filled with the most life-like figures of people from George Washington to Mickey Rooney that I have ever seen. As my friends and I walked the wax figure of Lincoln, I hit him lightly in the stomach and said, ' nowadays Artie Shaw cut out a whole new repertoire, I'm turning it into my horror and embarrassment, he laughed, smiled and walked towards me. I had to be encroached on the wrong choir, I was my first love."

In the meantime, Mr. Lincoln told me that it was the policy of the museum to place employees throughout the sections just to prove that it was practically impossible to distinguish real people from their wax figures. Don't ever let anyone tell you that the barber shop quartet in 1914. It includes "Begin the Begin." Ethel Smith's samba-organ!

Betty Sampson, sophomore, says, "When I was about ten, I was downtown with two of my friends and we were trying to hide from a girl who was being a constant nuisance. We hid in a store doorway and put two of our best friends to trip her. We were quite embarrassed when we had to pick up a well-dressed body and all her handbags."

Marc Halbert, freshman: "One night during my senior year in high school, I was caught ringing the curfew bell. The embarrassing part came the next morning when I had to appear in front of the boys. They just kept the peace."

Jack Findor, freshman: "I was a Sunday evening. For the first time in five years our family was having dinner together, with every member present. Since I had just arrived home the night before, I was more or less the subject of conversation. Consequently I asked the question, 'What are you accustomed to eating on Sunday nights?' Cold cuts; (many Scotch-Irish was my hasty, thoughtless reply.)"

WEST HOUSE

Congratulations from the boys at West House to Murph, on his return from a hunting trip in eastern Oregon when he bagged several grous.

The committee for skit night, consisting of Milliet, Smith and Kevan, is working on their skit. Several members of West house are to be in it.

But Neil and Julie Pangborn went to Roosevelt last weekend with Len Smith to visit John's parents.

This week's subject of study can be seen around the school in the shape of a Crosby-like pipe. As an embryo teacher, I feel it is my duty to follow my mother's example of teaching my children to smoke. "Begin the Begin." Ethel Smith's samba-organ!

This week's subject of study can be seen around the school in the shape of a Crosby-like pipe. As an embryo teacher, I feel it is my duty to follow my mother's example of teaching my children to smoke. "Begin the Begin." Ethel Smith's samba-organ!

A visual aid could be constructed to represent a '38 Buick by the widest stretch of reasoning.

A ceremony billing the occasion will be held on the steps of the administration building on November 31. The first person correctly identifying "Little Alfred" will be presented with a concrete cake, or a reasonably accurate facsimile thereof.

Next week, watch this space for West house personality Number Two.

WEST HOUSE

Juniors and seniors will be skitting. Several of the campus students and faculty members enjoyed the American Legion dance last Monday night.

DANCE

Some of the campus students and faculty members enjoyed the American Legion dance last Monday night.

ARTISTIC

An extra class, just remember, Home wasn't built in a day. Some of you look as though you had last your last friend. It isn't that bad! One can surprise himself at his own ability.

LOST AND FOUND

Mother: "Oh, George, you've been fighting again, and lost all your teeth!"

George: "No, I haven't. Ma, they're all in my pocket book."

SKITS

Everyone has been busily preparing for the skit night on Friday, November 22. That shows confidence and initiative. Let's see more of it!

SLIGHTLY WRINKLED

"Walk, Mr. Howie, bring me a dish of plate on his own ability."

Hospitality in your hands

before the event!

BALLEY

Now that the Ballet Russe has come and gone, everyone who at­ tended the performances can be satisfied with their very pleasant memories.

REMINDERS

There are always three sides to every story: his, yours, and the truth.

WINTER'S COMING

Cold and frosty mornings help to wake the sleepy student. Agree? With winter just around the corner, one really needs that heavy coat!

TWO-MANY

As one college student thought, "two famous Shakespearean plays—Romeo and Juliet.

VACATION

Students had a four-day vacation from teaching half week. From Friday until Tuesday is a long holiday.

DANCE

Some of the campus students and faculty members enjoyed the American Legion dance last Monday night.

ARTISTIC

An extra class, just remember, Home wasn't built in a day. Some of you look as though you had last your last friend. It isn't that bad! One can surprise himself at his own ability.

LOST AND FOUND

Mother: "Oh, George, you've been fighting again, and lost all your teeth!"

George: "No, I haven't. Ma, they're all in my pocket book."

SKITS

Everyone has been busily preparing for the skit night on Friday, November 22. That shows confidence and initiative. Let's see more of it!

SLIGHTLY WRINKLED

"Walk, Mr. Howie, bring me a dish of plate on his own ability."

"Snowed, sir!"

"That none o' your business."

Rambling Remarks

PARTY

To begin reminding this week, what did you girls think of the number party Friday night? Con­ gratulations are in order to the Collectors for sponsoring the rest­ ful event.

SADIE HAWKINS

"And a gay time was had by all" at the AWB Sadie Hawkins dance last Thursday night. Also, girls, that was some nice running of a Crosby-like pipe. As an embryo teacher, I feel it is my duty to follow my mother's example of teaching my children to smoke. "Begin the Begin." Ethel Smith's samba-organ!

An Indian named Joe was working all the summer delivering a Canadian fishing resort with his canoe."

"Cold cuts; (navy fashion)"

..."Cold cuts; (navy fashion)"
The Real Thing

by W. B. Stanley, Sports Editor

Football season is over at OCE. Looking back on the season record, we find the Wolves won two games and lost four. The local eleven looked better in the first contest when they defeated Pacific 18-0, than in any of the other games. It was just a case of light, inexperienced team against heavier and more experienced opponents.

If OCE expects to have a winning team next fall, someone must start a drive to bring athletes to this school. The conservative element around here has little interest in athletics and they seem to hold all the aces in the deck. Instead of a rising enrollment, this school may be surprised to find a sharp decrease in the number of students registered here. It is not unusual that OCE has the smallest enrollment of any of the colleges of education. There's a spook in the woodpile somewhere!

WAA Volleyball Practice Ended

Thursday evening completed the last volleyball practices before the4ountainous games. The high school players will be on teams from the different halls on and off campus. There will be games between the different classes.

An interesting game was played between boys and girls, with the girls on the winning side, but the boys put up a good fight and played exceptionally well, since they had had no previous practice.

Book Reviews

(Continued from Page Three)

Lamont turned in the report to the writer that he had failed, but later saw these headlines: "Murphy Declines to Declare his Intention in Case." This was journalism in the nineties.

After he had graduated from Harvard, Murphy took a job with the New York Tribune. His first assignment was to cover an Asiatic cholera story in the New York slums. As the building was quarantined, he couldn't get the story, so he was told to play it up with the then unknown "fly spreading germs." Murphy, now a multi-millionaire, is better known as Bill Baldwin, is now teaching eighth grade and girls' physical education at Parkrose school.

Some 20 years later when Lamont was a bank executive, Jim Murphy's Enterprises was formed. This book reviews Lamont's prints for the first time, a "Sunday Special!" that he wrote years ago, a love story with a tragic ending. Read this story to see how journalistic styles have changed, and to read a story from a great author—Al Wheelock.

"With No Regrets," an autobiography by Krishna Nehru. This autobiography is a good account of the struggles of members of the Indian Independence movement, bringing out very clearly their many personal problems. Although the background of this story is a lot of ground in the geographical sense, it is quite secondary to the importance of the characters. Krishna Nehru tells vividly the story of a country which has struggled so long for the independence of India. On the wealth and glory that came with its position she dwells but little, and then only to show by comparison how much the Nehru family really believes in independence.

Much is related about Jawahar, one of the foremost Indian leaders, and a member of the Nehru family. Krishna possibly quoted this passage on page 148, from Jawahar: "What mockery to ask us to shed our blood, to starve our people and to suffer all privations in defense of the democracy and freedom that have been denied us." All through her book, Krishna is continually holding Jawahar up as an example. This book should be on the required reading lists of all our colleges.—W.D.

徭 bars}

Football season is over at OCE. Looking back on the season record, we find the Wolves won two games and lost four. The local eleven looked better in the first contest when they defeated Pacific 18-0, than in any of the other games. It was just a case of light, inexperienced team against heavier and more experienced opponents.

If OCE expects to have a winning team next fall, someone must start a drive to bring athletes to this school. The conservative element around here has little interest in athletics and they seem to hold all the aces in the deck. Instead of a rising enrollment, this school may be surprised to find a sharp decrease in the number of students registered here. It is not unusual that OCE has the smallest enrollment of any of the colleges of education. There’s a spook in the woodpile somewhere!

WAA Volleyball Practice Ended

Thursday evening completed the last volleyball practices before the4ountainous games. The high school players will be on teams from the different halls on and off campus. There will be games between the different classes.

An interesting game was played between boys and girls, with the girls on the winning side, but the boys put up a good fight and played exceptionally well, since they had had no previous practice.

Book Reviews

(Continued from Page Three)

Lamont turned in the report to the writer that he had failed, but later saw these headlines: "Murphy Declines to Declare his Intention in Case." This was journalism in the nineties.

After he had graduated from Harvard, Murphy took a job with the New York Tribune. His first assignment was to cover an Asiatic cholera story in the New York slums. As the building was quarantined, he couldn't get the story, so he was told to play it up with the then unknown "fly spreading germs." Murphy, now a multi-millionaire, is better known as Bill Baldwin, is now teaching eighth grade and girls' physical education at Parkrose school.

Some 20 years later when Lamont was a bank executive, Jim Murphy's Enterprises was formed. This book reviews Lamont's prints for the first time, a "Sunday Special!" that he wrote years ago, a love story with a tragic ending. Read this story to see how journalistic styles have changed, and to read a story from a great author—Al Wheelock.

"With No Regrets," an autobiography by Krishna Nehru. This autobiography is a good account of the struggles of members of the Indian Independence movement, bringing out very clearly their many personal problems. Although the background of this story is a lot of ground in the geographical sense, it is quite secondary to the importance of the characters. Krishna Nehru tells vividly the story of a country which has struggled so long for the independence of India. On the wealth and glory that came with its position she dwells but little, and then only to show by comparison how much the Nehru family really believes in independence.

Much is related about Jawahar, one of the foremost Indian leaders, and a member of the Nehru family. Krishna possibly quoted this passage on page 148, from Jawahar: "What mockery to ask us to shed our blood, to starve our people and to suffer all privations in defense of the democracy and freedom that have been denied us." All through her book, Krishna is continually holding Jawahar up as an example. This book should be on the required reading lists of all our colleges.—W.D.

徭 bars}

Football season is over at OCE. Looking back on the season record, we find the Wolves won two games and lost four. The local eleven looked better in the first contest when they defeated Pacific 18-0, than in any of the other games. It was just a case of light, inexperienced team against heavier and more experienced opponents.

If OCE expects to have a winning team next fall, someone must start a drive to bring athletes to this school. The conservative element around here has little interest in athletics and they seem to hold all the aces in the deck. Instead of a rising enrollment, this school may be surprised to find a sharp decrease in the number of students registered here. It is not unusual that OCE has the smallest enrollment of any of the colleges of education. There’s a spook in the woodpile somewhere!

WAA Volleyball Practice Ended

Thursday evening completed the last volleyball practices before the4ountainous games. The high school players will be on teams from the different halls on and off campus. There will be games between the different classes.

An interesting game was played between boys and girls, with the girls on the winning side, but the boys put up a good fight and played exceptionally well, since they had had no previous practice.

Book Reviews

(Continued from Page Three)

Lamont turned in the report to the writer that he had failed, but later saw these headlines: "Murphy Declines to Declare his Intention in Case." This was journalism in the nineties.

After he had graduated from Harvard, Murphy took a job with the New York Tribune. His first assignment was to cover an Asiatic cholera story in the New York slums. As the building was quarantined, he couldn't get the story, so he was told to play it up with the then unknown "fly spreading germs." Murphy, now a multi-millionaire, is better known as Bill Baldwin, is now teaching eighth grade and girls' physical education at Parkrose school.

Some 20 years later when Lamont was a bank executive, Jim Murphy's Enterprises was formed. This book reviews Lamont's prints for the first time, a "Sunday Special!" that he wrote years ago, a love story with a tragic ending. Read this story to see how journalistic styles have changed, and to read a story from a great author—Al Wheelock.

"With No Regrets," an autobiography by Krishna Nehru. This autobiography is a good account of the struggles of members of the Indian Independence movement, bringing out very clearly their many personal problems. Although the background of this story is a lot of ground in the geographical sense, it is quite secondary to the importance of the characters. Krishna Nehru tells vividly the story of a country which has struggled so long for the independence of India. On the wealth and glory that came with its position she dwells but little, and then only to show by comparison how much the Nehru family really believes in independence.

Much is related about Jawahar, one of the foremost Indian leaders, and a member of the Nehru family. Krishna possibly quoted this passage on page 148, from Jawahar: "What mockery to ask us to shed our blood, to starve our people and to suffer all privations in defense of the democracy and freedom that have been denied us." All through her book, Krishna is continually holding Jawahar up as an example. This book should be on the required reading lists of all our colleges.—W.D.